CHANGE OF ADDRESS

Owing to the fact that we are issuing the Bulletin at second-class postage rates, the necessity for members notifying us immediately of any change in their post-office address is greater than heretofore. Sometimes members are careless in this matter. We have had one instance this year in which one of our members has had four different addresses, and, up to the present time, he has not received the volume of Proceedings for a year ago, due to the fact that before we could get the volume from one express office to another, owing to the red tape involved, after we had received notice of change, he had made another move. PLEASE NOTIFY US IMMEDIATELY.

TEACHING—A PROFESSION, NOT MERELY AN OCCUPATION

On the last page of this Bulletin, there will be found an application blank for active membership in the National Education Association. If you are not already an active member of the organization whose slogan appears at the top of this paragraph, if you believe that teaching is a profession, and desire to assist in movements that will hasten the day when it is so recognized by the public, fill out the application blank and send it, together with your remittance, to the Secretary.

ST. PAUL, JULY 4-11, 1914

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Education Association, held in Ann Arbor, Mich., October 21, it was unanimously decided to hold the Fifty-second Annual Convention at St. Paul, Minn., July 4 to 11, 1914. Previous to that meeting, the Secretary had made a trip of inspection to St. Paul for the purpose of determining whether there were adequate halls for meeting-places, and sufficient hotel accommodations. The St. Paul people are prepared to take care of the Association in first-class shape. The city auditorium will hold ten thousand people, and it can be divided into two halls, one of which will accommodate thirty-five hundred and the other fifty-five hundred people. Meetings can be held in the two halls at the same time without interfering with each other. Most of the proposed meeting-places are within easy distance from the St. Paul Hotel, which will be used as headquarters. The registration headquarters and the commercial exhibits will be arranged in the Armory. St. Paul has guaranteed seven thousand advance members from Minnesota and three thousand from Canadian territory and the adjacent states. Already plans are under foot for conducting a membership campaign on a more extended scale than has ever been undertaken heretofore.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

Summer Session of 1914

Members of the National Education Association will be interested to know that the University of Minnesota offers a wide range of undergraduate and graduate studies during its summer session from June 15 to July 24, 1914. The full equipment of the University is made available for summer students and many courses are announced by the Colleges of Science, Literature and the Arts, Education, Chemistry, Engineering, and Agriculture.

Students interested in agriculture and household arts may apply for announcements to A. V. Storm, director of the summer session, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn. The general bulletin of the summer session may be secured by addressing Dean George F. James, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn.

SALT LAKE CITY PROCEEDINGS

The volume of Proceedings for the Fifty-first meeting of the National Education Association, held at Salt Lake City, July last, will be delivered January 15 next.

The members of the Association will note three points at which the volume this year differs from those of preceding years.

In the first place, the cover has been changed to a brown for the purpose of relieving your book shelves of the funereal-like row of volumes with which it has been adorned.

In the next place, there has been a change in the paper used, a "Featherweight" paper having been substituted. This paper has been largely used in England for book work, but only recently has been made successfully in this country.

The third change will be noted in the size of the volume. Heretofore papers which have been presented have been published in full, with the result that there has been considerable duplication of material. This year, the Proceedings have been "edited," with the result that they present a less formidable appearance than formerly, and we believe that they will be read to a greater extent than they have been in their more bulky form. It has been the aim of the Secretary to omit no points of argument from the papers, and, while we realize better than any of the readers can the imperfections of the editing, we are sure that the experience of this year will enable us to do a better job next time. In the first attempt, it was impossible to see the end from the beginning, and, in many instances, the volume still contains duplications, owing to our inexperience.

BULLETIN

When the N. E. A. Bulletin was established and entered as second-class matter with the Post-Office Department, we were not sure as to the number of issues which would be necessary to send out the information to members with regard to the Association. We have now decided that it will take six issues a year arranged as follows:

The September Bulletin will contain a resume of the summer meeting. The November Bulletin will contain a preliminary announcement with regard to the meeting of the Department of Superintendence, and also with regard to the next Annual Meeting. The January Bulletin will be the Yearbook, which has always been issued and sent out with the Proceedings by express. The February Bulletin will contain a complete program of the meeting of the Department of Superintendence. The April Bulletin will contain a resume of the meeting of the Department of Superintendence and a preliminary program of the Annual Meeting. The June Bulletin will contain the complete program and final announcements with regard to the Annual Meeting.

1915 MEETING

Invitations have been received by the Secretary for the 1915 meeting of the Department of Superintendence from State Superintendent George B. Cook, of Little Rock, Ark., from the Chamber of Commerce, of Wilmington, Del., and from the Merchants Association of New York City.

100 PER CENT

When the Educational Directory for 1913 was received from the United States Commissioner of Education, this office had occasion to check off from the names there listed those who were members of the National Education Association. We were working on the list of superintendents of city schools for the purpose of making our mailing list for this issue of the Bulletin. We found that while there were two states in which not a single superintendent named was a member of the Association, there were four states in which all of the superintendents named were members of the Association. The office desires to list the four states as an example of what the condition should be in every other state. They are: Delaware, Nebraska, Nevada, and Wyoming. The other day a letter was received from one of the city superintendents in Wisconsin, containing the information that a movement was on foot in that state to secure as members for the Association every superintendent and high-school principal in the state. Other state workers, please copy. The idea is not patented.

DEPARTMENT OF SUPERINTENDENCE

The Department of Superintendence will hold its next annual meeting in Richmond, Va., February 23-8, 1914. In connection therewith, the National Council of Education, the Department of Normal Schools of the National Education Association, and several societies will hold special or regular meetings. The preliminary program, which is herewith presented, does not include the places at which the several meetings will be held. These will be announced in the final program. Most of the meetings will be held at the John Marshall High School or the Jefferson Hotel.

HEADQUARTERS

The Jefferson will be the official headquarters of the meeting. It will be necessary for every member of the Association to register with the General Secretary and secure the badge which will admit to the various meetings. The Secretary's office will be in the lobby of the Jefferson Hotel.

The Murphy will be the headquarters for the commercial exhibits. Arrangements have been made so that exhibitors will have better conveniences than have heretofore been offered them.

RAILWAY ARRANGEMENTS

The Southeastern Passenger Association, within whose territory Richmond is situated, has established an open, non-transferable round-trip ticket rate for use in connection with the meeting of the Department of Superintendence at about one and one-half cents a mile in each direction. These will be on sale within its territory, which includes everything south of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers, and east of the Mississippi River to the Atlantic seaboard, February 21, 22,

23, and for trains scheduled to arrive in Richmond on February 24. These tickets will be void for return after March 4, 1914. The following quotations show the rates from various points of the territory:

Washington, D. C.	$ 4.25
Cincinnati, Ohio, or Louisville, Ky.	20.50
Memphis, Tenn., or Evansville, Ind.	22.25
Greenville or Vicksburg, Miss.	25.60
Helena, Ark.	25.10
New Orleans, La.	27.45
Cairo, Ill.	24.95

The Central Passenger Association, which joins the Southeastern and includes the states of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and part of Illinois, has authorized the individual lines to sell round-trip tickets for the occasion, based upon the rates offered by the Southeastern Passenger Association, to which will be added two cents per traveled mile in the territory of the Central Passenger Association.

The Western Passenger Association has granted an open rate, from points to be selected by the rate clerks, of two cents a mile in each direction to Chicago, Peoria, or St. Louis, added to the fares tendered therefrom. Give your agent notice.

The Trunk Line Association, which includes the lines east of Buffalo and Pittsburg, west of the Hudson River and north of the Potomac River, has agreed to sell round-trip tickets, adding to the rate tendered by the Southeastern Passenger Association two cents a mile in each direction in the territory of that Association.

This will permit people in the Central and Western Passenger Associations to purchase tickets through either the Washington or Ohio and Kentucky gateways.

The New England Passenger Association has authorized a rate of two cents per mile, in each direction, short line mileage, plus fares tendered from basing points for the round trip, except on Bangor and Aroostook R. R. and the Eastern Steamship Corporation. Give agent 48 hours notice except at principal stations.

The Southwestern Passenger Association has not yet acted upon the application but will do so at its January meeting. The Transcontinental Passenger Association has not yet reported its action.

To sum up the railroad situation, the certificate plan will not bother us this year. Those who desire to take advantage of the reduced rates can purchase round-trip tickets, action for the sale of which has already been taken by four of the Associations and will probably be ratified by the other Associations. The rates which have been granted are practically as low as those granted for any occasion, even when the certificate plan is used. They average about one-eighth of a cent a mile higher than would have been paid last year if the certificate plan had worked. In some cases, where parties can be made up, it will be found advisable to purchase tickets at party rates. By consulting the local ticket agent information can be obtained with regard to them. Don't fail to consult your local agent a few days in advance of the trip so that in case he does not have the tariff sheets or tickets he can get them for you.

RICHMOND

Should the battle-scarred veteran of the G. A. R., whose slogan from '61 to '65 was "On to Richmond" and who finally entered Richmond to find it a heap of smouldering ashes in that memorable April 1865, return to Richmond in the year of grace 1914, he would find as wonderful a transformation as any weaved by fairy princess with magic wand.

From a population of about 38,000 in 1865, Richmond has grown to a city of 150,000 population and covers an area of ten square miles. Six great trunk lines reaching every section of our common country center here, making Richmond the natural gateway and distributing point for the South. Its jobbing business is more than $60,000,000 a year.

The splendid transportation facilities by rail and by water and the immense water power furnished by the James have given an impetus to manufacturing. Richmond has about a thousand manufacturing plants representing a hundred different industries, chief among which are tobacco factories, locomotive works, machine shops, iron foundries, stove works, carriage works, woodenware, fertilizer, paper and paper boxes, flour, baking-powder, meat-juice, shoe, and lumber plants. The woodenware and baking-powder plants are the largest in the world, and 70 per cent of the blotting paper made in the United States is made in Richmond.

Nature has done much to beautify Richmond—but it is not the beauty of Richmond alone that calls for the admiration of all who come within her borders, but the fact that its early history is so fraught with scenes of frontier life and romantic incidents that their recital must form a pleasing link between the old era of the seventeenth century and the new era which began with the Civil War, nearly one hundred years later.

The site of the city of Richmond is upon the very spot occupied not only by the most famous Indian tribes known to history (under the mighty King Powhatan, father of Pocahontas) but by the first English settlers, who, after depositing their goods and families at Jamestown in 1607, continued their journey up the James River to Richmond, where the falls of the river made it impossible for them to proceed further.

Tradition tells us the mighty chief Powhatan had his camping ground very near the city, and his tomb is pointed out to visitors just below the city on what is known as the "Mayo home."

Here also the British soldiers marched when Arnold and Tarleton invaded Richmond in the last year of the Revolutionary War.

The "Capital Square" was the place from which many of the Confederate soldiers of the late war were mustered into service—under Lee and Jackson. Over the roads leading into the city from every direction marched the weary soldiers of both armies during the late war, and near the river just below Gallego Mills is the site of Libby Prison, which was moved to Chicago during the World's Fair. The ground is now occupied by an ice plant. Around the city, even within its corporate limits, are still to be seen "breastworks" thrown out by the armies as a defense. Bullets, balls and buckles are still dug from these embankments. Within a short distance from the city were fought the battles of Yellow Tavern, Cold Harbor, Seven Pines, Strawberry Hill, Malvern Hill, Mechanicsville, Gaines' Mill and Savage Station. The history of the Seven Days' Fight around Richmond is written in blood.

The "White House of the Confederacy," at the corner of Twelfth and Clay, was the home of President Davis during his official life in Richmond. It is now occupied by the Confederate Museum.

The street-car system is not surpassed by any city in the Union, Richmond being the first city to have electric cars. The car lines extend to Seven Pines battle fields and to all points of interest around the city. There is also a line running to Petersburg, and persons taking this line can visit the famous battlefield of the Crater. Transfers from one line to another are given without extra charge.

St. John's church, Twenty-fifth and Broad streets, is a place of much interest, where in 1775, the Convention met in which Patrick Henry made his famous speech and sounded the keynote of American Liberty when he said, "Give me liberty or give me death."

Richmond may well usurp the title "Monumental City" in its efforts to honor its statesmen and its heroes. On every hand, in marble and in bronze, lofty and stately images bear testimony to Virginia's great statesmen and great warriors who have played so great a part in shaping and in guiding the destiny of the nation. Richmond is the Mecca of all true patriots.

In addition to its importance as an industrial, commercial, and historical center, Richmond is a literary and an educational center. As a literary center it has occupied an important place in the history of the South. The old printing shop, from which issued the "Southern Literary Messenger," edited by Edgar Allan Poe, still stands. In addition to Edgar Allan Poe, Richmond claims in ante-bellum days such writers as Dr. Bagby, John Marshall, John R. Thompson, George William Munford, whose translation of the Iliad in English verse is regarded as a most excellent work, preserving the spirit of the Greek in the English meter. In ante-bellum days the spirit of culture prevailed in the city among its lawyers, doctors, preachers and men of leisure. Of the modern writers, Richmond claims as its own Thomas Nelson Page, now ambassador to Italy, Miss Mary Johnston, Miss Ellen Glasgow, Miss Ella W. Tompkins, Henry S. Harrison and Mrs. Kate Langley Bosher. Richmond is not a large publishing center, but one publishing house, the B. F. Johnson Company, furnishes from 15 to 20 per cent of the textbooks used in the Southern States.

The citizens of Richmond have always claimed that it is the educational center of the South. The following institutions rank well: Richmond College, The Union Theological Seminary, Medical College of Virginia, The Virginia Union University for Colored. These institutions bring annually to the city, from all parts of Virginia and the Union, more than 1,500 young men and young women, besides furnishing educational advantages for the sons and daughters of its citizens.

At Charlottesville, ninety-six miles away, is the University of Virginia, established by the immortal Jefferson; and at Hampton, eighty-five miles away, is the Hampton Institute, for Indians and negroes, established by General Samuel C. Armstrong. Arrangements will be made for special excursions to both Hampton and the University.

The city has a number of private schools that furnish secondary education to about 1,200 boys and girls. Parochial schools of the city have an attendance of about 2,100. At present, the public schools of the city have an enrollment of more than 20,000. The John Marshall High School accommodates the whites and the Armstrong High School the colored. It is claimed that the Armstrong High School is the only four-year high school in the whole South for the education of the negro.

The elementary schools are organized on the seven-year basis, and any child to be admitted must be seven years of age. Below the elementary school is the kindergarten, providing for children between five and seven. In many of the schools, the kindergarten room is used in the afternoon for so-called connecting classes, the children being between the ages of six and seven. The study of the elementary-school system in Richmond may furnish some information of interest to superintendents, particularly the fact that the course is only of seven years duration, and the effort is being made to bridge over the gap between the kindergarten and the elementary school by the connecting class applying kindergarten methods to primary work.

The John Marshall High School is used day and night. The day school has an enrollment of 1,259 and the night school an enrollment of 1,228. The night school is organized to furnish whatever the pupils may wish. The course of study is really made by the applicants for admission, rather than by the school board.

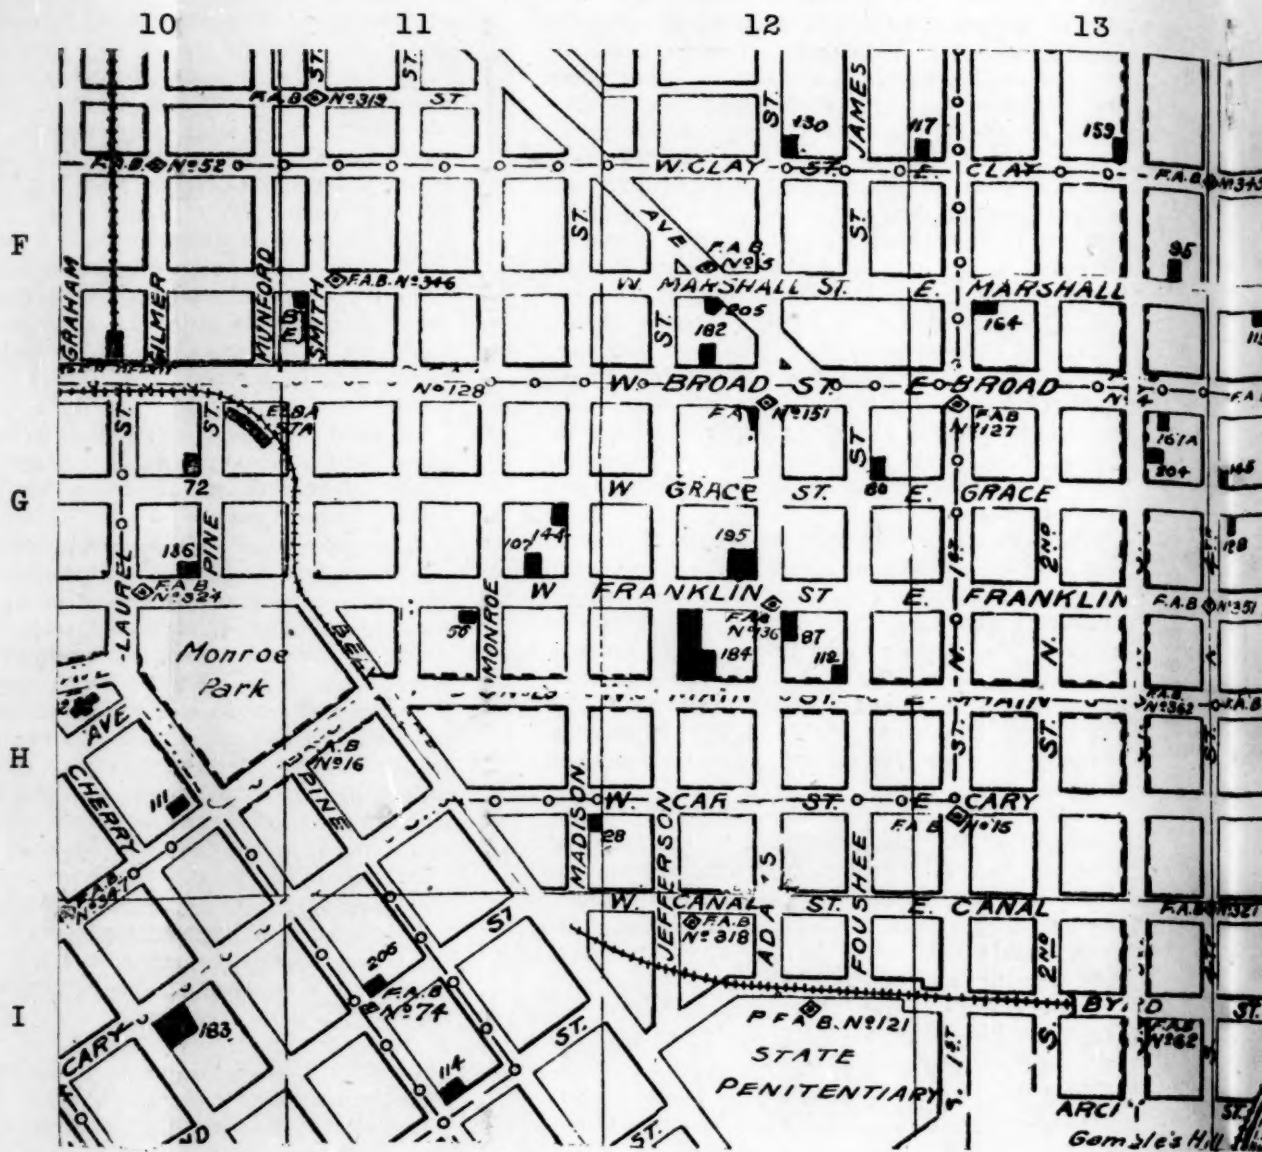

In one of the buildings an effort is made to have pre-vocational work. There are two open air school rooms in operation and two rooms for deficient and two for retarded pupils.

The public-school system maintains two normal schools for the training of its teachers,—the Richmond City Normal School, located in the William F. Fox School building, for white teachers, and the Armstrong Normal School, located in the Armstrong Normal School, for the training of colored teachers. These normal schools give two years in theory and practice, and their courses are on a par with similar institutions maintained by the state. The Armstrong School thus gives the negro girls in training for teachers six years beyond the grades. Nowhere else in any public-school system in the South is such an extensive course offered to this class of citizens.

Richmond is the only city in Virginia that has free textbooks, the introduction of which was by a very novel plan, calling for the surrender of the old books in the hands of the pupils. Within the last six years, the city has spent for new building sites approximately $1,000,000. The buildings are not expensive but comfortable. From the standpoint of the school superintendent, the type of building being constructed in Richmond will afford many suggestions.

Manual training, music, domestic science and physical education are to be found in all of the schools, and in a good many cases efforts are being made to correlate this work with the regular class work. There is also a very efficient system of medical inspection.

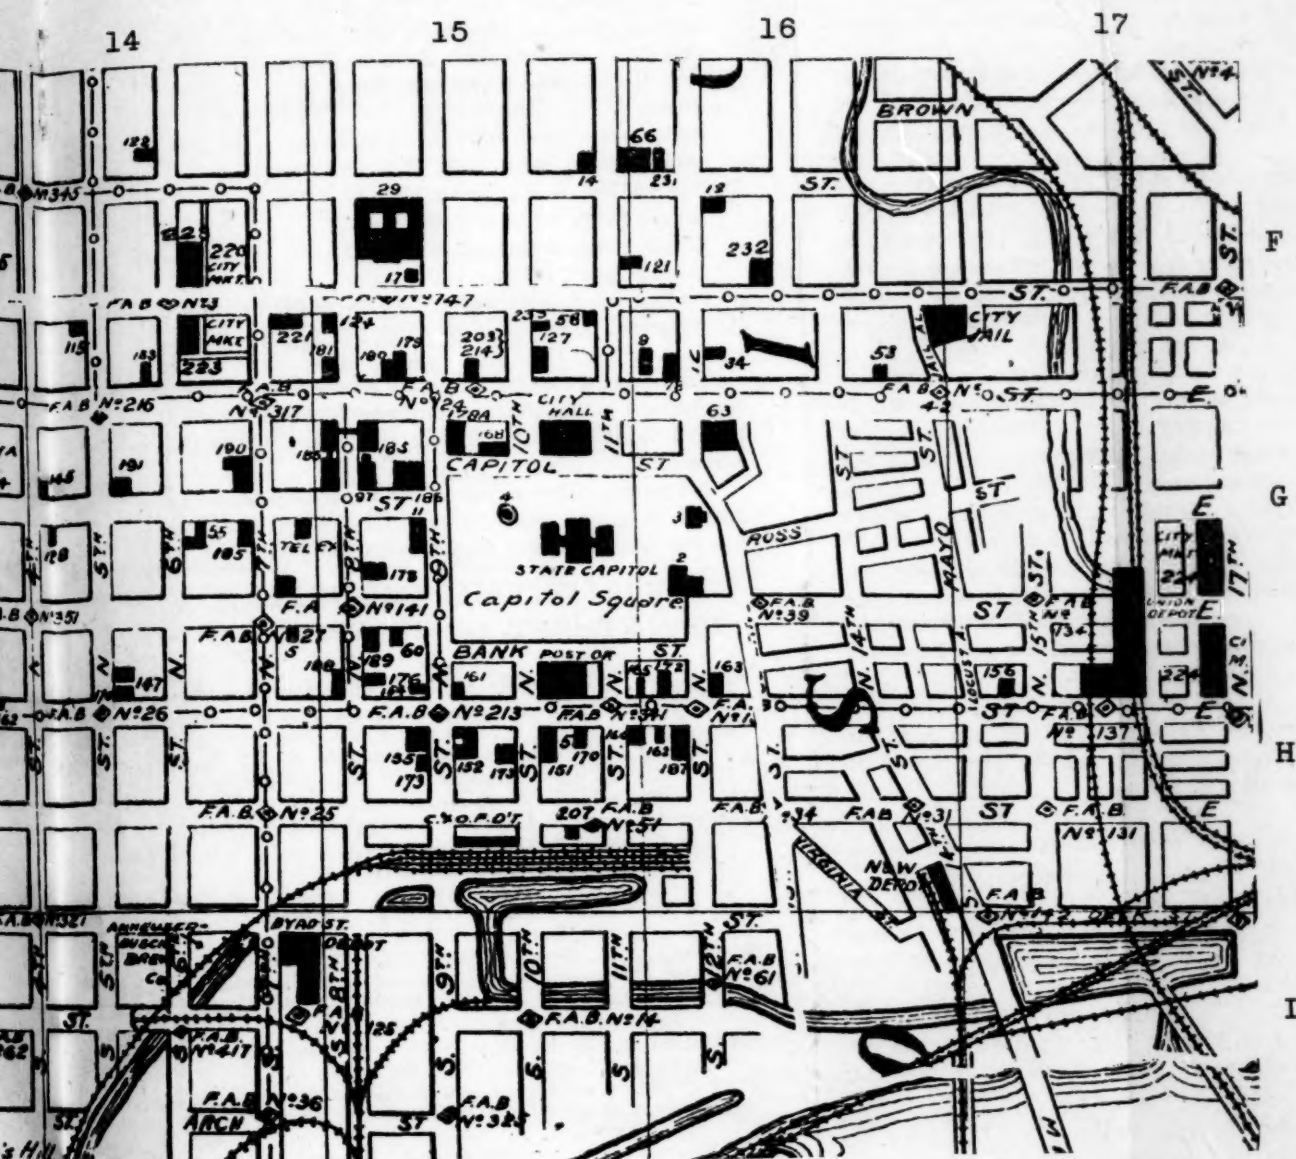

The growth and development of the system may readily be understood when it is stated that ten years ago the expenditures were $191,000 per year; 264 teachers; the value of school property $450,000; with an enrollment of 12,000; while today we have an enrollment of 20,000; the annual expenditures are $714,000; 625 teachers; and school property valued at $1,750,000.

Probably the most interesting features of the school system would be the use of the buildings for social purposes, night schools and medical inspection.

Richmond is unsurpassed by any city of its size in the United States in its hotel accommodations. There are six first-class hotels, with 1,600 rooms and accommodations for 3,500 people. These are the Jefferson with 400 rooms; the Richmond, 400 rooms; Murphy's, 500 rooms; Rueger's 140 rooms; the Lexington, 100 rooms, and Stumpf's, 75 rooms.

The Jefferson Hotel, which is the headquarters for the meeting of the Department of Superintendence, is ideally situated in the most desirable section of Richmond and within eight minutes' walk of the business center and shopping district.

The Richmond, Murphy's, Rueger's and Stumpf's are all new hotels, first class in every particular and are all situated within the heart of the business section of the city. The Lexington Hotel is centrally located at the corner of Main and Twelfth Streets, and is maintained on both the American and European plans.

There are a number of smaller hotels and rooming houses in the city, which make it very easy for Richmond to entertain a Convention of upwards of five thousand people.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

FROM JULY 1, 1912, TO JUNE 12, 1913

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, July 7, 1913

To the Executive Committee of the National Education Association:

The Board of Trustees of the National Education Association has the honor to submit for your information its report on the Permanent Fund of the Association for the period ending June 12, 1913. The several amounts collected as income from the Permanent Fund, and the disposition made of the same, are shown in detail in the Income Account. The amount of net income paid to the Treasurer of the Association during the year is $7,214.16.

The Permanent Fund now invested amounts to $186,602.50, not including cash on hand amounting to $1,397.50, awaiting investment.

New investment for the fund as shown in the Principal Account consists of $6,000 Clearwater, Kansas, Water Works Bonds, bearing 5 per cent interest, payable semi-annually.

The residence, numbered 4762 Lake Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, known as the Hord Property, was sold for $3,500. Its book value last year was listed at $5,500. This property came into possession of the Board of Trustees in 1907 under proceedings for the foreclosure of a mortgage. The offer of $3,500 was regarded as a fair one especially as the property needed extensive repairs and some special tax bills would soon have been issued.

The accounts and statements set forth in detail the financial operations of the year and the present state of the Permanent Fund:

President Fairchild announced that Joseph Swain, president of Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa., president-elect of the National Education Association, had been called home by reason of severe illness in his family, but had left with him the following message to the Association:

I was once present at the installation of Mr. Reid as speaker of the House of Representatives. The House and galleries were packed with a distinguished body of representative men and women. As he came up the aisle and took his place at the speaker's desk, there was prolonged applause, as was his desert.

As well as I remember this brilliant scene, I also remember equally well this sentence in his speech: "The honor is for a moment; the care and responsibility for many weary days and nights."

This is the feeling of any worthy man when he enters on a high public duty. I am highly sensible of the great honor you bestow on me in electing me to the presidency of the National Education Association. I am more sensible of the responsibility which you have placed upon me. For this confidence you have shown me, you have my cordial thanks; to help carry this responsibility, I ask your hearty support, best thought, and energy.

No extended remarks are necessary at this time. I wish to express briefly the spirit in which I shall endeavor to perform my task.

The thing for which I pray is vision, for without vision the people perish. There is a vision of the past, a vision of the present, and a vision of the future. The vision of the past is a vision of history; one who places his first emphasis on this vision is a conservative; a conservative has his place, and an important place, in calling attention to the lessons of the past, but if he does not go farther, he falls short of the best.

The vision of the present is the vision of science; with the telescope in the heavens above, and the microscope in the earth below, the scientist sees the universe as it is. That one who sees this vision only, and neglects the vision of the past, also fills an important place—yes, a very important place—yet falls short of the best.

The prophet is the man who out of the vision of the past and the vision of the present can see the vision of the future, and point out the pathway along which our feet must be guided.

This Association has a noble past, it is doing a marvelous work in the present, and I invite all teachers, north, south, east, and west, to study these two visions and out of them build the vision of the future in the interests of the children—the hope of America. One God, one country, and a united Association, for the promotion of the best!

Again, for the honor of the moment, I thank you; with a sense of the responsibility which comes with this duty, I seek your consecration to, and loving service in, the glorious future, which should be more glorious than our present dreams.

President Fairchild, after brief remarks of cordial thanks to all members of the Association for co-operation during the year just over, announced the adjournment of the Fifty-first Convention of the National Education Association.

DURAND W. SPRINGER, Secretary

MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF ACTIVE MEMBERS OF THE NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION FOR THE YEAR 1912-13

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1913

The annual meeting of the active members for the election of officers and other business was called to order in Assembly Hall by President Edward T. Fairchild at 11:00 A.M., July 10, 1913.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The hour has arrived for the opening of the business meeting of this Association. The first order of business is the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Mr. Chairman, the Yearbook, which all of the active members have received, gives the record and all the proceedings of the last annual meeting.

M. P. E. GROSZMANN, of New Jersey: I move that the reading of the minutes be dispensed with and that they be approved as printed.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next order of business is the report of the Executive Committee which will be made by Vice-President Pearse.

CARROLL G. PEARSE, of Wisconsin: Mr. President, and members of the Association: I have been asked on behalf of the Executive Committee to present their report with reference to appropriations for the coming year. I beg leave to offer the following:

To the Active Members of the National Education Association:

As required by the by-laws of this Association, your Executive Committee has considered carefully the requests which have been presented from various sources for appropriations desired for use in connection with the work of committees of investigation, appointed by the Association, by the National Council, or by the departments.

After a full consideration of the probable resources and necessary expenditures for the coming year, it has been evident to your committee that it will be impossible to allow all the appropriations asked for, and with much regret the members of the committee have felt constrained to limit their recommendations to the following list:

For the use of:

Committee on Articulation of High Schools and Colleges	$1,350
Committee on Rural Schools	1,000
Committee on Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living	575
Committee on Uniform Nomenclature in English Grammar	1,400
Committee on College Entrance Requirements	40
Committee on Vocational Education and Vocational Guidance	2,000

Your committee in recommending these appropriations recognizes the fact that it will be necessary for the Association to make a special effort during the coming year to increase materially its active membership. The recommendations are made with the knowledge and in the faith that the teachers of the country can be depended upon to respond to such representations and appeal as will be made by the executive officers of the Association. Your committee recognizes also that the exigencies which may arise during the year may render it necessary for the Executive Committee to assume temporary responsibility in deciding which expenditures are most important in the work of these various committees, and which expenditures shall be first authorized, if in any case it shall be impracticable for all such expenditures to be authorized as requested.

Your committee recommends that the unexpended balances of all appropriations for the use of committees, made in former years, after paying such bills as may be now outstanding against such appropriations, be recovered into the general fund of the Association, and thus made available for any necessary purposes during the coming year.

MR. PEARSE: Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of the report as presented, and, if I may have a second, there are certain explanations which I have been asked to make by the members of the committee.

Motion seconded.

MR. PEARSE: Your committee recognizes that so far as the financial status of the Association is concerned we are at a period of change from one condition to what we trust will be another. In the merry days gone by, the festive excursionists visited the convention of the National Association. It was the custom in those days for railroads to encourage travel among teachers by giving special rates for the members of the Association. These rates were taken advantage of freely by people who desired to make a trip into that region of the country where the convention was held, as well as by our members.

These people, under the regulations then existing, all contributed their two dollars to the treasury of the Association, and, as a result of this arrangement, a handsome and permanent fund has been built up in a few years. But the railways began to be restive under this arrangement, and for the last two or three years they have been very chary of granting any special excursion rates. For example, at this meeting in Salt Lake City today we are only enjoying the regular summer tourist rate. The National Education Association meeting here has no advantage whatever over any person who might buy a ticket any time between the first day of June and the thirtieth of September.

Further, at this time no person who comes here to be with his or her friend, who is a teacher, has any inducement except his or her general educational interest to pay two dollars as in the past. He can enjoy all of the privileges of his ticket without contributing to the membership of the Association.

For these reasons, the revenue of the Association has fallen off largely, and it has been necessary, or it seems to the Executive Committee necessary, to make recommendations for appropriations for the ensuing year in the light of these conditions.

To explain a little further how this thing works. In the years gone by, when members of the Association were merely associate members in large numbers, and did not care for the volume of Proceedings, when they were excursionists and friends of the teachers, the committee didn't need much of an appropriation for the printing of the volume of Proceedings. To give an illustration, at the Boston meeting, 35,000 members paid their membership fees, but only 18,000 volumes of the Proceedings were printed and called for while last year in Chicago, 17,000 members paid their fees, less than one-half as many as at the Boston meeting. On the other hand, more than 13,000 of the members who enrolled asked for the volume of Proceedings.

This shows clearly that the membership has changed from a membership including a very large number of transients to a membership made up of teachers and those interested in the problems of education, who have asked and will continue to ask for the Proceedings.

Now these conditions are likely to be permanent. The executive officers and members of the Board of Directors are of the opinion that the way for us to do is to go on, confident in the future of this Association. There has been no misappropriation of its funds; there has been no foolish expenditure; there has been no expenditure for things that were not contributory to the work of the Association.

We believe, however, and I think you will share with the Executive Committee in that belief, that with a teaching body of 500,000 people in the United States, it is, to use the vernacular, on us, that we have only 7,000 or 8,000 active members of this Association. We believe that the way for us is to go forward, confident in the response that will be made to a proper appeal by the executive officers who will be chosen for the ensuing year.

In that faith, that these appeals and this showing of facts to the teachers of the country will result in an increased membership that will warrant the expenditures which have been recommended, your Executive Committee has thought proper to recommend these expenditures for these committees. We are sorry because we have been obliged to say no to appropriations asked for for worthy purposes, for committees made up of distinguished members of this Association, but we have felt it was imperative to choose between good things, and that the outlook for this year would not warrant the Executive Committee in recommending appropriations beyond those which have been named in this list.

Now the committee is ready to answer any questions or make any further explanations which may be desired. I will say with reference to one of these items—the matter of the Committee on Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living—that this amount of money remains of the appropriation formerly made. Consultation with the chairman of the committee gives to the Executive Committee the information that they believe their work can be completed, with the co-operation which they are now receiving from the United States Bureau of Education, for the amount suggested.

CHARLES H. KEYES, of New York: Mr. Chairman, and members of the Association: I never like to trust the mere hearing of the reading of a report of numerous items, but, if I am correct in what I heard, I understand that the committee, in the necessity of choosing between important things, is saying that, as a burning question demanding the support of this body—without offense to any of the gentlemen who may be involved in it—the settling of uniform grammatical terminology is worth fourteen hundred dollars to this body, and the investigating of health problems of American public schools is not worth two cents.

I confess I am distressed and I am mystified. I hadn't supposed that the spirit of the times was so concerned about saving the nation on the question of grammatical terminology, and so totally unconcerned with matters affecting the health of the teachers and pupils in the American public schools. I hadn't supposed that to settle the question of the relationship of colleges and high schools money should be made available while the rural schools are left to suffer.

I am afraid, gentlemen, that, if we are to serve notice to the great American teaching public that these are our pre-eminent lines of interest, we shall lose financial support rather than gain it, and it is because of that, and with all respect, and I beg to assure you, Mr. Chairman, that I have the supremest respect for this committee, that I move that we amend the report of the Executive Committee by adding thereto the appropriations called for by the Council. Each of these appropriations is less than some of the appropriations called for here.

The American Medical Association has already hung up three thousand dollars, and that is available, dollar for dollar, for every dollar that you appropriate. Must we say to the American Medical Association that there is no interest in this matter? I move you, sir, that we add to the report the two appropriations called for by unanimous vote of the Council, $1,500.00 for the support of the work of the Committee on Health Problems in American Public Schools, and $1,000.00 for the Committee on Standards and Tests of Efficiency.

MARGARET HALEY, of Illinois: I would like to ask what amount has been recovered into the treasury from the Committee on Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: There will not be anything recovered under this motion and under the report of the committee, as they make the appropriation equal to the balance.

MISS HALEY: In other words, the amount which has been appropriated this year is simply a reappropriation?

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: That is right.

MISS HALEY: That makes the total that has been appropriated for salaries how much?

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Six thousand dollars. The first year's appropriation was three thousand and the second year's appropriation was three thousand. Including certain portions of the report which were involved, President Swain, as I understand it, said that they could carry on their work if the balance were left untouched.

MISS HALEY: Now, Mr. President, I wish to speak on that matter if it is in order. Of course I may be misinformed, but it seems to me that the amount appropriated to continue this work is inadequate for what I had supposed we were going to do—that is, work out a statement for the entire United States similar to the report made in the state of Massachusetts. In that report, they gathered together statistics which included not only the schedule of salaries paid in all the cities and towns, but they even went into the rural districts where there were only two and three teachers, or even one teacher, and they found the number of teachers and the salaries paid. We have been wanting this for years and years. The report of 1905 didn't give that information. Yesterday we had revealed to us the situation in one of the large cities in the United States which would not have been possible with such a report. We found that there were 1,800 teachers in the city; that the maximum salary was $800.00; that 313 teachers out of the 1,800 were drawing that maximum; and that 576 teachers were drawing a salary three steps below that maximum, these teachers not being eligible to the maximum.

Now, unless we are able to secure not only the schedule but the number of teachers receiving salary in that schedule, we don't show the state of things in the cities and in other places, and we want the report completed in order to get that information. If we could be assured that that can be done on $500.00 with the co-operation of the Bureau of Education, we should be satisfied, but we should like to have that report adopted in such a way that if that amount is not adequate the Board of Directors may be instructed to supplement the amount. Could we have an amendment of that kind—would it not be in order?

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I should like to assure Miss Haley and this body of active members that the Executive Committee joins with you in the profoundest appreciation of the importance of this report. We have made our recommendation, as I understand it, on the authority of President Swain, that the amount named would be sufficient. I heartily agree with the speaker, and I think I voice the judgment and opinion of the Executive Committee, when I say that we shall be very glad to make the appropriation if it seems best, and that this sum may be extended if necessity calls for it.

MISS HALEY: When that amendment is made, I want it to be an authority to the Board of Directors to supplement the amount so that a report for the entire United States similar to the report made by the state of Massachusetts may be made.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Would you draw that up in writing, please?

W. J. KERR, of Oregon: May I ask that the items included in the report of the committee be re-read that we may have before us clearly the question upon which we are to base a decision?

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: In compliance with Superintendent Kerr's request, I will ask Superintendent Pearse to restate those items.

(Items of report re-read by Mr. Pearse.)

WILLIAM B. OWEN, of Illinois: I should like to ask for the opinion of the Executive Committee as to whether it is possible or wise to amend the report so as to add these items to the total. If we have already appropriated all that we can appropriate, it would be folly on the part of this Association to add these two items to a sum already at its maximum.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: If the Chair may be permitted to state, I will say that in view of the very clear presentation of the financial condition of this Association, and its probable income for the ensuing year, the committee felt that it had appropriated every dollar, and indeed more than we can anticipate safely, excepting on the theory of an increased membership. I am sure that this audience will understand that this committee is in deepest sympathy with all the requests made and would be most happy could it have complied with them. It is simply a question of dollars and cents.

If the given amount of dollars and cents has not been wisely distributed in the opinion of this audience, you have the power to change or to redistribute it. Are there any further remarks on this amendment as made and seconded?

ARTHUR L. WILLISTON, of Massachusetts: I should like to ask the chairman of the committee if it is not a fact that the appropriations which are recommended here are, in the main, appropriations for continuing and completing work that has been for some time under way, and also if the appropriations which have been asked for and not granted are for new work which the committee does not see its way clear to start at this particular time.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I will say in answer to that, that, in most cases, these are committees that have been at work and are seeking to complete their work. As to those committees to which we were unable to grant appropriations, it is true that, in most cases, they are new activities that were proposed.

MR. GROSZMANN: I should like to propose a substitute motion. As regards the two committees, the one on grammatical nomenclature and the one on health of school children, it seems to me that the latter committee, especially now that we have secured the co-operation of the American Medical Association, is of more eminent importance than the other. I should like to offer, therefore, this substitute motion: That the appropriation now given to the Committee on Grammatical Nomenclature be transferred to the Committee on Health Problems in American Public Schools.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: You have heard the motion; is there a second?

Motion seconded.

W. T. CARRINGTON, of Missouri: It seems to me that we ought to have a statement of what that Committee on Grammatical Nomenclature has done besides this report. I notice here in the report of expenditures that they have contracted for, or rather expended, about $240. Now have they made contracts on which the money has not, as yet, been paid? We ought to know what we are doing in regard to that before we vote on it. If they have contracted to spend money, we ought not to take it away from them.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I should be glad to have Mr. Hale, who is the chairman of that committee, answer that.

WILLIAM G. HALE, of Illinois: The first thing that I should like to say is that what our committee desires is to complete the work assigned to it, and to emancipate our young children from the conditions to which they are now subjected. The total expense of the work will be about $2,000.00. A part of the money has already been used, including $500.00 which Mrs. Young loaned us in order that we might go on with the work. We still need about $1,400.00 to meet our obligations.

Our committee comes from all parts of the country. The money has been spent, and, if you please, you may put it upon us to meet these obligations. For example, one member of the committee spent $140.00 out of his own pocket which has not been paid back, and so on, but that is not the important thing. We care more for the report than we do for our pockets. Our work is all done so far as expense goes. We have been at work two years. No more will be asked from this Association. You are thru with us so far as this report is concerned, whether you vote to repay the money or not. I feel a little embarrassed about the $500.00 which Mrs. Young loaned us.

E. E. SCRIBNER, of Michigan: Mr. Chairman, I have, to some extent, been interested in the report of the Committee on Grammatical Nomenclature. My information has come thru educational papers and personal contact with some of the members of the committee.

It seems to me that it is unwise, in a body of this nature, for the active members of this great national Association to assume to question the wisdom of the appropriations of a committee that has deliberated very carefully over the requests for expenditures which come from the various committees.

My experience in other bodies has taught me that it is safe to trust only to the deliberations of those who have had time to consider. Now the American Medical Association, as President Keyes has said, is very much interested in investigating the health of the boys and girls who attend the public schools of this nation. All of us no doubt have read of the deliberations of that Medical Association. The doctors of our community are full of it; our family physician can talk scarcely of anything else than public school work and the health of the children; but, as Dr. Hale has so well said, the questions which arise in the teaching of the language of the nation are such as to perplex the boys and girls, and it seems to me we shall be shortsighted if we deprive this committee of the financial support which is due them. Some of the money has already been expended and comes from the pockets of the members of the committee. Let us support our own committee, and, when President Keyes comes before us next year and wants an appropriation for health investigation, we shall be ready to give it to him.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Will you indulge the Chair a moment, and then I shall recognize Dr. Groszmann. I should like to point out that the committee feels that, in view of the splendid service performed by this committee on grammatical terms, we ought to pay the legitimate expenses that have been contracted. Out of the kindness and generosity of her heart, Mrs. Young advanced $500.00, and the other items that go to make up the amount recommended are expenses that have been incurred necessarily in developing this report. It is the opinion of the speaker that to repudiate a moral obligation is not the way to get money for these other things.

MR. GROSZMANN: Mr. Chairman: This is a very embarrassing situation owing to the fact that the committee has gone beyond the appropriation made for its work. Now if a committee even with the best motives—and I certainly am fully in harmony with the members of that committee—if any committee, driven by the best motives, goes beyond its appropriation, and money is granted it, to supply the deficit, this might establish a precedent that would constantly involve the Association in debt. You can't do that sort of thing, and we can't condone it, with the best of respect for the members of that committee. If the committee hasn't the money to do its work, it should so report to the meeting of this Association and ask for more money. Now, of course, we owe it to the members of this committee to make good those expenditures that they have made in good faith, and I am the last one to vote against any such reimbursement, but when it comes before us as a matter of choice between these two committees, one for grammatical nomenclature and one for school health, I shall vote every time for the health of the children, because that is the fundamental thing and the other is an accessory matter. It seems to me that we should appropriate this money more especially now since we have the co-operation of the American Medical Association. They are ready to expend money, and it would seem strange on the part of the National Education Association to hang up this matter for another year. For this reason, while I feel for the members of the committee, I don't wish to withdraw my substitute.

MR. KEYES: Mr. Chairman, may I ask for a list of the appropriations which are for new work? Before that question is answered, I want to say that the appropriation we are asking for is for the prosecution of work already in hand. Do I make clear that I haven't asked you to take away from any committee one dollar to give to the Committee on Health Problems in the American Public Schools? I am not going to discuss the wisdom of spending money beyond the appropriations. I understand that we may not go ahead and spend one dollar beyond the money you have given us. We are not asking money to begin a new work; we are asking money to finish up the splendid work, evidences of which have been before you this week. We have refrained from using one dollar of that $2,500.00 standing there, feeling that we couldn't until we had been authorized by you to do so. I desire to serve notice that the appropriation we ask for is for work well on toward completion.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The Secretary will indicate the new committees provided for.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: I don't see any that are absolutely new.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The report indicates then that all of these committees have been in existence before.

MR. KEYES: I didn't ask for the committees heretofore in existence, but committees whose work is already begun.

JAMES M. GREENWOOD, of Missouri: The Executive Committee anticipated what it was possible to do with the money at our disposal. They went over carefully the appropriations asked for and made certain recommendations. It is a simple question—if you have about twelve or thirteen thousand dollars to be expended for printing the Proceedings and other documents, and require twenty-five thousand dollars to do the work, where are you going to get the money? That is the question. It isn't because we shouldn't like to do it, but where will the money come from? Now, with this understanding, which is clear and simple, I think we shall be able to go ahead and do the very best we can under the circumstances.

ROBERT J. ALEY, of Maine: It does seem to me, Mr. President, that there ought to be some adjustment of this matter, inasmuch as some of the committees—I think I am right in that—that have had money appropriated for them have been at work a shorter time than some of the committees excluded. The Committee on Health Problems was appointed at San Francisco two years ago, and they have been at work two years. It seems to me it isn't fair to simply kill a committee which we must all recognize as important. I might say, however, under my breath, that unless means of which nobody is sure of at present can be provided, there will not be one dollar for any of these appropriations. Therefore, I should like to make a motion as a substitute for all the motions before the house, if that can properly be done. That motion is this: That the Executive Committee be instructed to prorate whatever money is available for all the committees named and including the two for which an amendment has been proposed.

MR. KEYES: I will gladly withdraw my motion if permitted by the second, and accept President Aley's in its place.

MR. GROSZMANN: That makes, of course, my substitute unnecessary.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: As I understand the proposed motion, which may take precedence according to the movers of the other motions, it is that authority and power to act be granted in the name of this meeting to the Executive Committee, with instructions that, having ascertained the amount of money to be distributed, they prorate it among all these committees. Now, it seems to me, if I understand the question, Dr. Aley, that you are simply returning to this committee the power that they had in an advisory way, making it plenary. The basis of prorating is not suggested, and, therefore, it is entirely in their hands. Am I right?

MR. ALEY: That is a detail I hadn't thought out fully.

MR. KEYES: I understand that, instead of my motion, there is to be added to this list read by the Executive Committee two items, one calling for fifteen hundred dollars, and one for ten hundred dollars, and that we respectfully submit to the committee instructions to prorate. Give us the same proportion of the money available as you give to the others.

MISS HALEY: That will not be fair to our committee for this reason: There is but five hundred dollars now appropriated to do that work: that is the minimum, and if that is prorated, it is not adequate for the work. I submit at this time that, when we want to go before the people of the United States—and when I say "we" I mean the women—and ask them to come in and support this institution, it doesn't look very well to say that we have prorated a five-hundred-dollar appropriation to finish the report on salaries. I believe it is a mistake to make this motion until we have first had the amendment which Mr. Springer has in his hand, and, if Mr. Aley is willing to let this amendment be put first—

MR. ALEY: I am willing to exclude that committee from the operation of prorating.

MR. KEYES: I heartily accept that.

MR. PEARSE: Mr. Chairman, I have in my hand a list of the committees appointed in the past for which appropriations have been granted, and for a number of which appropriations have been asked this year. Now, Mr. Chairman, it is due to the Executive Committee that I say that the committees that cared to do so appeared by their representatives before the Executive Committee; that their case was presented; and that their work was explained. The Executive Committee was confronted by the necessity of dealing with a request that exceeded the budget by about three to one. Your committee has gone about as far as it feels that it can in the matter of expense.

Now with reference to these committees for which appropriations have been suggested. The Committee on the Articulation of High Schools and Colleges is one which has work extending into every high school in its relation to the colleges of the country—work that is imperatively needed in order to equalize conditions of college entrance. The Committee on Rural Schools has been given what it asked. Its report was ordered by the Council. The Committee on Teachers' Salaries has partially completed a report, and three thousand dollars was appropriated to this committee last year. The committee hasn't used all this money. It has made an arrangement—answering the question that was recently asked—with the Bureau of Education by which the information desired is to be forthcoming, information which will give not only the schedule of salaries in all the cities of the United States, but the actual salaries paid. This report is actually in preparation, and will be supplied by the Bureau of Education. For this reason it was thought—and I have information from the Secretary to the effect that this was discussed with the chairman of the committee—that if this work was done by the Bureau, as had been arranged, the amount indicated would cover the necessities of the case this year. Now, of course, if this isn't done by the Bureau, this Association must appropriate money to do that work.

With reference to the Committee on Uniform Nomenclature in English Grammar, this committee was appointed by one of the departments of this Association, ranking, at least, in importance with the Council. It was afterward recognized by the Association. It is, as you know, a co-operative committee. Committees were appointed to work with a committee from this body from the Modern Language Association and from one of the Philological Associations. Our committee has been compelled, in order that it might not shame the National Education Association by being unable to perform the work which it contracted to do, to pay out of personal funds its expenses for traveling, hotels, postage, stationery, printing, etc., and it has been obliged to borrow funds from others for that purpose. This committee will stand in contempt of the other associations with which it has worked if it doesn't meet this moral obligation. Now beyond this, this report has been completed; it is ready, or will be within a short time, for presentation to our Secretary for inclusion in our Proceedings. This work which our committee has been doing in harmonizing nomenclature is being taken up all over the civilized world. Germany has taken it up; Austria has taken it up; and our committee is the first of these to report. It is believed that the work of our committee will profoundly influence the reports of other nations. Therefore, the Executive Committee in listing the items that were thought to be warranted and important have included this as per schedule here.

Your committee had before it the inaugurating of the work of the Committee on Vocational Guidance. It felt that there was no greater question before the educational people of this country than this. This is a new committee; it hasn't worked long, and it hasn't expended much money in the past, but your Executive Committee felt that this matter of vocational guidance and vocational education is pressing upon us in a way that no other single problem is pressing. The request of this committee has already been scaled and reduced from the amount which the committee felt could be used.

Now, Mr. Chairman, in closing I wish to say that here is the financial situation which confronts us. There is a proposed by-law that says that 10 per cent of the gross income each year is to be expended or appropriated for educational research, unless otherwise ordered. Your committee, feeling the importance of this vital work, has gone beyond this suggestion. It has doubled the amount mentioned in this by-law, and has made a recommendation for appropriations which will be, perhaps, 20 per cent of what is in sight at the present time. We believe this is as far as we are warranted in making recommendations.

There is no question but that any one of these gentlemen whose committees have not been supplied with funds would be glad to have funds supplied. It is merely a question of whether the Executive Committee, being confronted with all these requests, and having reached a conclusion according to its best judgment, is qualified to make a recommendation as to the apportionment of the funds for the ensuing year, or whether the persons more directly interested and feeling the need of their particular department, without a full knowledge of all the other departments and other requirements, should determine the ratio of apportionment. Your committee believes that the recommendation which it has made is sound and as extensive as it ought to be made and in that faith has made the recommendation to you, trusting that it will meet with your approval.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I requested Miss Haley to write out an amendment a little while ago, and I desire to have that read, and, if it meets with your approval, it can be included in this major motion.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: The amendment reads as follows:

Moved, That the Board of Directors be directed to add to the appropriation for the Committee on Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living such an amount, if any be needed, as will make it possible to secure and compile information on teachers' salaries for the entire United States, containing the same information for all the states as the recent report for the state of Massachusetts.

MISS HALEY: I wish to say that Dr. Swain feels that $2,500.00 will be needed in doing this work, but, in view of the arrangement already suggested, this amendment will be perfectly satisfactory to the committee.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Do you move that amendment?

MISS HALEY: I move the adoption of that amendment.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Are you ready for the original motion as amended?

Motion seconded and carried.

MR. KEYES: May I take a minute on behalf of our committee to thank this Association?

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The report of the Board of Trustees will next be in order: Dr. Greenwood.

MR. GREENWOOD: You have the report in your hands. It was handed to you as you came in at the door, and it speaks for itself. There have been no additions made to the Permanent Fund during the year. If anyone has any questions to ask, the members of the Board of Trustees will be ready to answer them. I move the adoption of the report.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next order of business is the report of the Treasurer.

GRACE M. SHEPHERD, of Idaho, Treasurer: Mr. Chairman and members of the Association: I move the adoption of the report, a copy of which you have received.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next report is that of the Secretary.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Mr. Chairman: The report is merely a matter of compilation which is printed in the Yearbook, and I suggest that we do not take the time to read it.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Very well, we will pass it. The report of the Committee on Uniform Nomenclature in English Grammar is next.

C. R. ROUNDS, of Wisconsin: Ladies and gentlemen: As I watched your faces this morning, and listened to the tones of your voices, I thought I detected a little sarcasm whenever you came to that ill-sounding phrase, "Uniform Nomenclature in English Grammar." I think most of you are fathers and mothers who are here this morning. Most of you have children in the schools. I want to assure you that this subject of uniform nomenclature in English grammar is one that concerns those children vitally all thru their school course. It isn't a matter to be sneered at, or to be treated with sarcasm, and to be put aside as something that doesn't amount to anything. Do you know that for the simple little term "good" in the sentence "He is good," there are nine different names in the English grammar? Do you know that our language at present is a babel or jargon which neither teachers nor children understand?

It is the aim of this committee to do away with that deplorable situation. It is the purpose of this committee to set forth a simple, uniform, direct terminology for the constructions of English grammar, and for the construction of other languages that are taught in our public schools; to spare our children the humiliation of being misunderstood when they know their lessons, but when their teachers do not understand them; to spare our teachers the difficulty of learning a new language for each new class.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, I don't have time to discuss here the details of this report. It is unfortunate that you couldn't have had this report in your hands and under your consideration longer, for we who have worked upon it believe that your appreciation of it will grow with the study of it. The committee has spent 156 hours in deliberating over this report. That means an average of 12½ hours to a page for the first 12 pages. We have deliberated carefully, calmly, and to the best of our ability, and we hope and believe that we have presented a report that is worthy of your support. I merely want to suggest this: It will not please any one of you wholly—no report can ever be presented that will do that—but if you feel like rejecting the report, do not reject it because it doesn't entirely suit you, because if you do that you will never have a report that will entirely suit you.

MR. HALE: I am sorry to inflict something more on you concerning nomenclature, but it was arranged that Mr. Rounds and I should both speak.

I am glad to say that I owe my appointment to this body. I have been an active member for a great many years. I have never before had an opportunity to serve the Association, but I believe this service by this committee is a very great one. When we were begging for money, one man sent a check to us for a generous amount, and said that he gave it more gladly than he would to a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, because he knew how the children suffered in the public schools on account of this matter.

We have started in every case with the English language. English is our mother-tongue; it is the language we know best. We have, in every instance, selected the term which we should have selected if there had been no other language in existence, but, at the same time, again and again we have been helped in determining the terminology by the study of the terms in use in other languages. May I illustrate what I mean? I am a father, and I have had four children go thru a certain school. One of them at one time was studying three languages, probably because the taste for languages seems to have been inherited in my family. For a certain thing he learned a certain term. For exactly the same thing which he studied at the same time in another language, he learned another term and another explanation, and in a third language he learned still another term for this same thing and another explanation. Now I am a hardened student of languages, but that stands out in memory as a great difficulty to a young student.

This is the way I feel about it: As a father, I think that condition of things is deplorable; as a citizen I think it wasteful; and as an investigator, I know it is absurd. Now we have the same system of nomenclature running thru the whole range of our studies, and, where there are individual deflections, I have special names for those deflections. When a student has first learned a term for a certain thing in English grammar, he has learned that for his entire life. That is the work we have been trying to do.

MR. PEARSE: I move that the report of the Joint Committee on Grammatical Nomenclature be accepted; that the committee be continued and directed to complete the editing of the report for publication; and that the National Education Association hereby recommends that, as early as practicable, the nomenclature set forth in the report of the joint committee be employed in the schools of the United States.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: We will now hear the Report of the Committee on Vocational Education and Vocational Guidance.

ROBERT J. FULLER, of Massachusetts: Mr. Chairman: Your committee on Vocational Education and Vocational Guidance believes that this is one of the most important matters that has been before this Association for many years. You have in your hands a copy of the preliminary report prepared by this committee. This report contains briefly the platform on which this committee is working.

Your committee believes that vocational education has its justification from three standpoints, the social, economic, and educational. You will find each of those discussed in this preliminary outline. This outline contains, further, certain issues and questions which may be discussed in a final report. It contains also an outline of material which may be gathered together for a final report. Its recommendation is that this committee be continued, with a sufficient appropriation to carry on and prosecute its work to a successful completion—not a final completion, as no educational work can be absolutely final. I move the adoption of this report.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next order of business is hearing the report of the Committee on Nominations. Will the chairman please report?

I move the adoption of this report.

Motion seconded.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: It has been moved and seconded that the report of the committee be adopted; are there any remarks?

GEORGE M. LYNCH, of Florida: I would like to amend the motion, Mr. President, to adopt the committee's report. I move that each part of the report be adopted separately. I do this for the reason that in the newspapers of Salt Lake City, from the beginning of the convention up to the present time, this National Education Association has been advertised as gradually growing to be the great democratic association of America. What that name means I do not know, but it was said that we were pouring democracy into this Association; that the rank and file were taking possession of this Association; that the old guard were being placed in the background, and so on. In order to be consistent, in order to carry out this principle, in order to make the Chicago Federation absolutely consistent in their demands, let's have these nominations from the floor.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The Chair rules that the order of business is the report of this committee. Are you ready for the question?

Motion carried unanimously.

HENRY B. DEWEY, of Washington: Mr. President, there are two sections of the United States without representation on the Board of Directors—Alaska and Porto Rico. I move that the Executive Committee be authorized to appoint a representative for each of these sections.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I should like to say that they have that power, and will be glad to do that. Now at this moment will you bear with me while I speak upon the question of the directorate. Apparently under the present by-laws it is impossible to hold a meeting of the new directorate until the close of the present annual meeting of the Association. Acting upon that interpretation, the announcement of the new meeting as found in the program is for Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock. Now may I address myself for a moment to those who are members of this new directorate? Matters of supreme importance, matters of ways and means are to come before this meeting, and it is hoped and believed that everyone who has accepted this important position for his state will make every necessary sacrifice and remain over to attend this meeting. The interests of the Association depend upon your presence and assistance.

The next report to come before this body is the report of the Committee on By-Laws. It should be remembered that at the Chicago meeting the committee reported on certain by-laws that had been under consideration for a long time, and much of that report—indeed the majority of it—was accepted, with some amendment. There were, however, a few by-laws proposed that the members felt ought to receive further consideration, and, on motion, the President was directed to appoint a committee to give this subject further consideration, and to report at this meeting. We were to hear the report from the chairman of that committee as appointed by the President, Mr. T. H. Harris, Louisiana, but he is not able to be present, and I will request Mr. Pearse to present the report of that committee at this time.

To the Active Members of the National Education Association:

Your committee appointed one year ago to consider the Articles of Incorporation and recommend any changes thought to be needed, after fully considering the matter, are of the opinion that, in view of important matters pending and to be discussed at the present annual meeting, it is inadvisable for them at this time to suggest specific changes in the Articles of Incorporation.

Respectfully submitted,

T. H. HARRIS, Chairman
WILLIAM B. OWEN
M. E. PEARSON
C. G. PEARSE
JOSEPH SWAIN

MR. PEARSE: I move the adoption of the report.
Motion seconded and carried.

(Second part of the report read by MR. PEARSE.)

To the Active Members of the National Education Association:

Your committee appointed one year ago to consider proposed changes in the by-laws beg to report as follows:

That proposed Section 2 of Article II (page 51 of the Yearbook for 1912), relating to nomination of trustee, member of the Executive Committee, and Secretary of the Association, be not adopted.

That Article X, adopted one year ago, be renumbered to be Article XI, and that Article X of the proposed amendments to the by-laws be adopted when amended so as to read as follows:

ARTICLE X—APPROPRIATIONS

SECTION 1.—Unless otherwise ordered by the active members at their annual business meeting, not less than 10 per cent of the gross income of the Association each year shall be set aside for such educational investigations and studies as may be ordered in accordance with Section 5 of Article III.

Respectfully submitted,

T. H. HARRIS, Chairman
WILLIAM B. OWEN
M. E. PEARSON
C. G. PEARSE
JOSEPH SWAIN

MR. PEARSE: I move the adoption of this part of the report.
Motion seconded and carried.

(Third part of the report read by Mr. PEARSE.)

To the Active Members of the National Education Association:

Your committee appointed one year ago to consider proposed changes in the by-laws relating to time of meeting of the National Council of Education and time of meeting of all departments has considered the matter carefully and desires to report as follows:

A majority of your committee is of the opinion that the proposed amendments should be adopted and that meetings of the National Council of Education and of all departments except the Department of Superintendence should be held at the time of, and in connection with, the annual meeting of the Association.

A strong plea has been made, however, by a number of members of the Association whose opinions are entitled to respectful consideration that action upon these two proposed amendments to the by-laws be deferred for one year in order that further discussion may be had upon the same.

After listening to what has been presented by these members, your committee is willing to recommend that the committee having the matter under consideration be continued and granted an additional year in which to make final report and recommendation to the Association.

Respectfully submitted,

T. H. HARRIS, Chairman
WILLIAM B. OWEN
M. E. PEARSON
C. G. PEARSE
JOSEPH SWAIN

MR. PEARSE: I move the adoption of this part of the report.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: We will now hear the report of the chairman of the Committee on Resolutions.

JAMES H. BAKER, of Colorado: Mr. President, and members of this Association: Some months ago the President of this Association conceived the idea of varying the form of the resolutions by adding, as a part of the resolutions, brief papers upon present conditions and progressive movements connected with leading departments of our scheme of public education, and his views, as I understand it, were presented at an informal meeting called in Philadelphia, at the time of the meeting of the Department of Superintendence. After a lengthy discussion the plan was approved, and the administration of this year, in selecting the membership upon the committee, asked each member to present a written report or paper upon a suggested phase or vital question in our national education. This work was done. The reports, with the exception of two that were delayed, were printed in pamphlet form, and were distributed in the early days of this annual meeting. The committee met at the appointed time, and together went over all of these special reports or papers, and decided that in some cases there should be some modification, particularly because there were some controverted points which not all of the committee could agree to, and which we believed might bring up some extended discussion if there were not some modification. Different views were expressed by members of the committee on those points, but I think you may be assured that such modifications have been made as will meet with the approval of all the members of the Association. These resolutions are in your hands, having been distributed this morning. Mr. President, I move that the part of the report of the committee styled "Declaration of Principles" be received and ordered printed.

Motion seconded.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES

It has seemed fitting at this, the Fifty-first Annual Convention of the National Education Association, which marks the opening of the second half-century of its work in behalf of national educational interests, that a series of Declarations, or Pronouncements, be made by this Association, setting forth the present conception of certain leading phases of national education.

It is hoped that these declarations may serve as an accepted guide by not only the members of this Association, but by all teachers in the United States.

FOREWORD—THE PROBLEM STATED

MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH

In formulating a statement of the meaning of education in the United States, it is essential to determine first of all the scope of our national educational activities, and, in the second place, to define somewhat in detail the agencies thru which we aim to achieve the ends visioned in our educational endeavor.

An examination into the scope of American educational activities discloses a complex situation. We have no central authoritative bureau whose pronouncements are binding upon educational agencies thruout the country. Each state is authorized by law to establish and maintain its own educational activities. Legally, therefore, there are as many answers to the question of the scope of our educational endeavor as there are legislative pronouncements in the several states. Moreover, each state by legislative enactment delegates large elements of directive power to local educational agencies. This tends further to lessen uniformity and to hinder satisfactory analysis.

However, this confusion in procedure is, as a matter of fact, more apparent than real; for it must be kept in mind that our population is homogeneous and expresses itself in legislation more uniformly than one might suppose. There is, nevertheless, the absence of a central authoritative pronouncement and corresponding freedom of procedure on the part of the several states in matters affecting public-school legislation.

The National Bureau of Education, altho its functions are in a large way advisory and their acceptance voluntary, has had nation-wide influence in defining the trend of public education and is rapidly approaching an activity that gives hope in the near future of the realization of some central guidance which will be of value in all legislative procedure, and, thru that, in the molding of public sentiment toward a harmonious educational endeavor. For the present, it is safe to assume that the scope of our educational endeavor is best expressed in terms of the accredited agencies in our educational system.

In attempting to define the end of educational endeavor in the republic, it is well to keep in mind the fact that in part the aim of the school is to prepare the individual for the widest possible participation in governmental functions. The interest of the state in education is primarily that of guaranteeing to itself, and, therefore, to its own perpetuity, an enlightened citizenry. It seeks to achieve this result by imparting to each pupil as effectively as possible the common elements of an approved education. These elements, expressed in the formal elements of the curriculum, are the tools of democracy. The keynote here is education for co-operation, to the end that the entire population may be able to think together and thus to plan to live together under civil order.

In another sense, the aim of our educational endeavor is to fit each individual for the widest participation in the legitimate activities of organized society. To accomplish this, it seeks to discipline the mind so as to make it readily capable of a rational approach to the real problems of life. It also aims in this connection to inform the mind upon such substantial and fundamental matters as underlie all economic procedure. The keynote here is education for orderly co-operation, to the end that the individual may make a maximum contribution to the common good.

The school aims also to conserve the physical well-being of the individual: by securing proper physical environment during the school years; by systematic training in wholesome physical disciplines; and by imparting such a fund of practical knowledge relating to hygiene as to guarantee the continuance of this care by the individual as a self-regulated, informed unit of society. Knowledge must not be bought at the price of health. The keynote here is education for the conservation of the health and, hence, of the physical vigor of the race.

Finally, it aims, by its organization and administration, and by formal instruction, to insure such habits of reaction on the moral side as to establish the conduct of the individual both as a citizen and as an economic unit above criticism. This moral phase of our education seeks to secure from each pupil courtesy, which is the virtue of the social life; and dependableness, which is the virtue of the ethical life. It also endeavors, and to be typical must succeed, to establish in each pupil the crowning good of a humble spirit, which is the virtue of religion. The keynote here is a reverent regard for the rights of others and a wise orienting of the individual for right living.

It may, therefore, be claimed that the education provided by the republic aims to establish a stable, enlightened citizenry capable of performing satisfactorily the social, vocational, and moral obligations incumbent upon each citizen.

THE NATIONAL BUREAU OF EDUCATION

PHILANDER PRIESTLY CLAXTON

The Constitution of the United States makes no mention of education. Our federal government maintains no general system of public schools. There is as yet no national college or university. The creation, maintenance, and control of schools and school systems are left to the several states. Education has remained a function of the state and not of the nation.

Yet the nation as a whole is no less interested in education than the states. Citizens of the several states are also citizens of the United States. The duties and responsibilities of national citizenship are no less important or difficult than the duties and responsibilities of state citizenship. The welfare of state and nation alike depends upon the intelligence and virtue of their citizens.

For this reason the federal government has from the beginning encouraged education in the several states and provided for schools and other means of education in its territories and possessions. For the support of education in schools of all grades it has appropriated nearly one hundred millions of acres of public lands and many millions of dollars of federal funds.

In the early history of the country the conceptions of education were simple and its problems appeared easy of solution. For the masses of the people only a meager beginning in the three R's was attempted. For a few there was added a minimum of geography, history, and elementary science. A smaller number still gained some knowledge of the classics and higher mathematics. Little provision was made for commercial, professional, or technical education. There was no state, county, or city supervision of schools. Each school was a separate and unrelated organism. There were no normal schools for the education and training of teachers, and education as a course in college or university was unknown. No professional preparation of teachers was required or expected; nor were there any recognized standards of academic education. There were no national or state education associations, and few local organizations of teachers. As a result of these conditions the percentage of illiteracy in all parts of the country was large and the standards of schools and colleges were low and uncertain.

In the second and third quarters of the last century these conditions began to change. Systems of public schools were organized with state, county, and city supervision. Normal schools for the professional education and training of teachers were established. Schools were graded and classified, and attempts at standardization and correlation were begun. Teachers and school officers, until then content for the most part with their own meager experience, began to feel the need of some knowledge of the work of other teachers and school officers in their own and other states and countries.

State departments of education could give some help in the sphere of elementary and secondary education, their ability to do so varying widely from state to state. The associations were valuable chiefly in creating sentiment, stimulating ideals, and pointing out defects and needs. There was no general agency on which all alike might depend for accurate information in regard to education in this and other countries and for comprehensive investigations into the vital problems of administration and of education in schools of all classes, and for a clear presentation of the organization, methods, and results of education by agencies of all kinds.

Out of the feeling for the need for such a central agency grew the demand for a National Education Office, which was created by act of Congress in 1867.

Over the schools of the states the Bureau of Education has no executive authority. The autonomy of the states in regard to education is no way affected by it, nor can be. It is a servant and not a master. Its only authority is to serve. It was created and exists in response to the right which the people of the United States have to demand of the federal government such service as is requisite for the general welfare but can be rendered not at all, not so well, or only at much greater cost by the state governments.

The functions of the Bureau of Education are:

1. To serve as a clearing-house of information in regard to education in the several states of the Union and in all the countries of the world.
2. To make careful and thoro studies of schools, school systems, and other agencies of education, of their organization and management, of methods of teaching, and of such problems of education as may from time to time assume special importance, and to give to the people the result of these studies and also the results of similar investigations made by other agencies.
3. To give, upon request, expert opinion and advice to state, county, and city officials and to respond to appeals from individuals and organizations for advice or suggestions for the promotion of education in any part of the country.

4. To serve as a common ground of meeting and a point of correlation for all educational agencies of whatever grade, both public and private, thruout the country.

5. To serve as a point of contact in education between the United States and other countries.

6. To co-operate with any and all persons, organizations, and agencies in working out the higher and better ideals of education, holding them before the people for their inspiration, and formulating practical plans for their attainment.

Immediate demands on the Bureau of Education are for:

1. Help in working out the difficult problems of the rural school in its support, management, and adaptation.

2. Help in formulating standards of city school administration on the side both of education and of business management.

3. Help in readjusting the work of the high school to the lower school, to college, and to life.

4. Help in working out a more effective correlation between the units of the systems of higher education in the several states.

5. Leadership in devising plans for a better adjustment of the education of the schools to the practical needs of life without losing its culture value.

6. A series of comprehensive studies in the education of exceptional children.

7. Direction in school sanitation and hygiene, and in the health education of children.

8. The initiation of a comprehensive and effective system of home education.

9. Help in bringing teachers, officials, and people to a comprehension of the fact that education is one thing and not many, whether for the service of the individual, of society, or of the state.

The most pressing needs for the Bureau of Education are for:

1. Groups of able men and women, experts in their several departments, to work with freedom, patiently and persistently, at their several problems.

2. Money for printing, traveling expenses, and for making such exhibits as may be necessary to bring the results of their investigations to all the people in the most effective way.

THE STATE IN EDUCATION

PAYSON SMITH

The state is the largest educational unit. It must bear the ultimate responsibility for the right education of all its children. This responsibility does not end with those institutions that are maintained at public cost. It extends to all institutions and organizations that have to do with the education of the people. None may exist without the authority of the state and to the state each must be held responsible for the efficient discharge of the function it assumes.

The state department of education is the agency which represents the state in its organized control and direction of education. It is not an autocratic bureau whence proceeds authority, it is the means by which the state interprets in action the educational purposes and policies of its people.

The state department of education, whatever its form of organization, has three distinct tasks to discharge:

First: It must be held responsible for investigating all educational activities and their results. It should be the depository of information regarding all the institutions and organizations that undertake any phase of the people's education.

Second: The state department of education must report in terms intelligible to the people the result of its investigation. Educational progress depends in American schools upon the support and co-operation of the people. These are impossible without the constant and repeated enlightenment of the people with respect to every important movement undertaken. But the function of the state department as a disseminator of educational information does not end either with the formal or with the more popular reporting of the activities within the state's own bounds. It should extend to the spreading among the people as widely as possible the undertakings and results of education elsewhere, and particularly should it engage in a work of propaganda regarding those outside activities that seem most desirable and possible of adaptation to the state's present condition and needs.

Third: The state department of education must be charged, in a measure, with fixing the standards that will control the broader phases of the state's educational policy. In discharging this function the state department is fundamentally an interpretive agency trying to express in its concrete rules, regulations, and definitions the consensus of educational sentiment and opinion of the state. Its task is to keep as near as possible to the highest level of public thinking at the same time that it keeps within its consideration all the factors to which any educational policy must go back for a part of its final judgment.

The state, in creating a department of education and endowing it with the authority to direct certain large steps of procedure, does not contemplate the destruction of local autonomy or even unnecessary limitation. The largest liberty consistent with the people's accepted standards will conserve, not reduce, educational efficiency. As the freedom of the individual teacher must be protected so must the town, city, or county be as little hampered as possible in working out the solution of its own problems.

Hence the state department of education must be:

1. The state's supreme agency for the expression of the state's educational ideas and plans.
2. The one bureau responsible for the adequate investigation for the people of all phases of their educational undertakings.
3. The source of reliable information of all matters both within and without the state that may affect the educational welfare of the people of the state it represents.
4. A leader in promoting legislative acts on these points of the state's educational procedure which the people have been prepared to sustain.
5. An organizer of standards with respect to courses of study, qualifications of teachers, construction and equipment of school buildings, and all other general features of educational administration, leaving to the local educational agency the largest possible freedom within its own field.
6. A harmonizer of all the institutions and agencies of the state into a co-operative body for the advancement of all the educational interests of the state and its citizens.

THE UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE

JAMES H. BAKER

The character of universities has always been largely determined by the dominant thought and interests of the people in a given period of history. Within a few years in this country there have been vital changes in the ideals of higher education, due to the attempt, more or less conscious, to adapt educational aims to civic needs. In discarding many former traditions a period of reconstruction has followed; but already there is a clear vision of future lines of development.

Any analysis of the problems of the modern university must include the following: the adaptation of the college of liberal arts—whether separate or a school of the university—to the needs of society as a whole; the adequacy of the university organization in preparing for specialized activities; the broader humanism demanded of higher education; a general view of the relation of higher education to democracy; some special questions.

The one fixed curriculum of the early New England college in its day served a useful purpose. Today we must meet the demand for specialized knowledge; the claims of new thought and interests; the new problems of government and society. Colleges are now organized, especially in the last two years of the course, with a broad vocational aim. Subjects are presented in groups leading toward the professions, teaching, business, applied science, or special fields of culture. Emphasis is given modern subjects and the application of principles to real life and present-day problems.

The first function of the college, so far as it represents general education and not preparation for graduate or special schools, is to make the enlightened citizen. Society needs the college man in its business as society, and as never before—the man who is acquainted with history, the political and economic and social sciences, the physical sciences, the sentiments and ideas embodied in literature, who has perspective and can interpret the present by the past and by the understanding and logic of organized knowledge. He is needed as the representative of clear thought on the questions of the day, as the advocate of an independent press, of wisdom in legislation and efficiency in administration. In short, the scholar is needed to preserve the real treasure of the past, to extend knowledge, and to analyze the problems of our civilization.

Today the entire university adapts itself to the demands of society. Special schools within the university are provided for law, medicine, engineering, agriculture. Within the arts college are found such forms of organization as the college of commerce and the college of education. The highest opportunity for formal scholarship and intensive preparation for vocations is offered by the graduate school. Moreover, in many states, state-supported institutions extend the work of the departments to cover a large outside field. A careful study of results in one state shows that the university's influence materially aids farming, engineering, teaching, municipal government, and legislation; that it improves the character of the press and the tone of society; develops intelligent interest in sociological problems, and creates greater variety in life and a better philosophy.

The old ideal of the university, in effect, was often exclusive. The new ideal leads to efficiency and service—a broader humanism. Learning is not alone for the congenial few. The social aim is emphasized. The university is supposed to represent the highest interests and aspirations of the people. The teacher, while no less the scholar, is more related to life; the student is stimulated by a large purpose of usefulness; the graduate should be "fruitful and friendly to all mankind." The university becomes more or less responsible for advocating clear thought, right legislation, good government, justice to all classes, state pride in every good cause, a philosophy of hope and courage. There is no more significant fact in the history of civilization than the new spirit of the scholar—emerging from the cloister, coming forth into the light, among men.

Our great problem today is to bring together higher education and democracy—the union of the science and power of the schools with the popular will. The scholar must recognize the larger function of science and a wider altruism. The people must have faith in the work of higher education as representing the best interests of society, in the graduates as the instruments of a better civilization. There can be no completely successful democracy without the learning and vision of the scholar combined with the right impulses of the people.

In this period of rapid changes and new interests, we must not forget that profound science, foundation principles, research, a large philosophy of life—the scholar and thinker—are the great need of the American people; that humanity is more than prosperity; the relation of man to men more important than man's relation to nature.

We must refer to the investigation, now being conducted as a national question, on economy of time in the period of general education. This aims to prove that the period can be reduced two years without loss in knowledge or power, and the college degree can be reached at about the age of twenty; that the university—namely the graduate and professional schools—should then be built upon the complete college course.

The question of a national university is not a dead issue. As conceived today, such an institution would represent profound scientific research in every field, the study of every vital problem of government and society, a hopeful idealism. It would represent, as politics cannot, the power of efficiency and the spirit of service in government. It would become the most effective instrument of a higher scientific and civic standard.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL

J. G. CRABBE

The American normal school has created, stimulated, idealized, and in this generation brought ideals to the knowledge of the people. The normal school stands for democracy in education and is unalterably opposed to the centralization of educational power.

Its professional spirit is a spirit of consecration.

The normal school has been established in all lands where there exists a system of state-supported schools. It is a vital part of the public-school system because well-trained teachers are a prime requisite for efficient schools.

Teaching is an art, based upon a body of professional knowledge—knowledge of the purpose of the school and of the laws of development of the child. It is the business of the normal school to organize this knowledge and develop this art.

The public schools were very elementary in character in the early days of the normal school. Today they are no longer elementary; special forms have developed, courses have broadened, and new researches in science, new demands for vocational training, and new problems in the rural community and in society have found lodgment in the public schools. There is need for the departmental teacher and the special teacher, while school supervision and administration have become a profession. Principals and superintendents should be trained in a professional atmosphere where the same ideals are set up, the same principles and methods taught, as are taught to the teachers who are to work under their leadership. The normal school should regard these problems of public-school education as distinctly its own and attack them with the enthusiasm and energy inspired by a great mission.

The twentieth-century normal school is dedicated to higher education, with the special function of supplying teachers for the rural schools, the elementary schools, and the high schools.¹

¹ James H. Baker, a member of the Committee on Resolutions, called attention to the opposite view of the universities, colleges, and high schools, and to the fact that this statement raises the question of the place for the preparation of high-school teachers, involving costly duplication by normal schools of the colleges of liberal arts—whether separate institutions or departments of universities—the function of university departments of education, economy, scholarship standards of secondary teachers.

Its entrance requirements as to scholarship will be practically the same requirements that are now demanded by the colleges—graduation from a four-year high school.

It will extend its courses of instruction and practice, as conditions may demand, to four-year courses,¹ thus giving it as high a standing in the way of discipline and scholarship as the college now possesses.

It will widely extend the field of professional experimentation and investigation.

It will try out its graduates as to their ability to teach and manage schools by such a period of practice-teaching as will settle the case beyond peradventure.

It will plan effectively to train teachers for rural schools, to stimulate and foster every educative agency toward the development of rural community life, and to elevate the professional position of the rural teacher.

It will set up definite ends of education that will relate themselves to the life of the people in all departments of human interest and will thus become a great social energy. As the public school is going to become, next to the family, the most potent social agent, so the normal school is going to fit teachers to perform this educative function.

For a half-century the leaders among normal schools in this country have been devoted enthusiasts and of boundless ideas; they had the greatest faith in education and the intensest love for teaching; they were superior teachers possessing remarkable skill in the conduct of instruction and inspiration. We reaffirm our faith in the devotion, the patriotism, the consecration of these men and women who have made possible the achievements of the American normal school.

But the twentieth-century normal school will develop such a spirit of enthusiasm and devotion in its pupils as will do for the schools of the country at large what is now done in a limited number of centers.

THE CITY SCHOOL SYSTEM IN AMERICAN EDUCATION

CARROLL GARDNER PEARSE

The problem.—The American city school system serves a cosmopolitan population living under the new and complex conditions which press upon the dwellers in modern cities. Education is to train for life, and a public educational system is to train the young people of the community to be intelligent, effective individuals, and to be good and useful citizens, having economic value and able to help wisely in the decisions of public questions.

The city school has for its problem:

To give the youth of the community that knowledge of the elemental arts of reading, writing, and computation, which all need; to put them in possession of the general knowledge which is the inheritance of civilized men, makes its possessors able to understand measurably well the conditions under which men live upon and enjoy the earth, and renders them able to mingle, understand each other's speech, and judge the content, the standards, and the intent of each other's minds.

To give to youth ideals of life and of the things worth while for the citizen to strive for and sacrifice for. This involves knowledge of the individual's duty to his family and his neighbors, to the city into which he and his neighbors are organized for protection and the promotion of the general welfare, to the larger governmental unit into which local communities organize themselves and which they call a state.

To fix in the heart of the youth the history and traditions of our people and of the local and general governments which they have built up for themselves; to make each one, using his general knowledge as a background, able to act intelligently, whether at the ballot box, addressing his fellow-citizens, or in official position.

To make each citizen a valuable economic unit, trained to do the best he is capable of in some useful trade or profession. To do this, the city school system must first help the youth and his parents to get such information about him and about various employments, as will make them best able to decide into what employment the youth should go; second, to see that either in the schools or elsewhere the young man or woman can be trained for this work.

The instrumentalities.—To do this work the system must have teachers for the school-rooms where the pupils are brought into the presence of the educator. The conditions in city schools are difficult, both on account of the number of pupils given to each teacher, and on account of the home, social, and industrial conditions usual in cities; for these reasons it is important that in city schools the teachers should be thoroly trained and of good personality.

Classrooms must be well equipped. Young people who live in the open, near field, forest, shore, mountain, have much to stimulate thought; but city youth, shut off from wholesome familiarity with natural things, must have illustrative material, which shall interest and entertain, lead to useful employment of hands, and wholesome physical exercise. Full equipment of wall blackboards and charts, interesting objects from nature or industry, laboratories, workshops, gymnasiums—these are not the luxuries or incidentals, but the necessities of city schools.

When all pupils led outdoor lives, had vigorous exercise at work and play, youth brought to school stronger muscles, bigger frames, more vigorous hearts, breathing and digestive organs, steadier nervous systems, than city youth today. Then less essential, it is now vital that classrooms have the best arrangement for floor and air space, heating and lighting, air renewal, the best-modeled school desks; in buildings, the best sanitary conveniences.

In the country dooryard, on the village green, children can play; cities cover all their land with houses and pavements. The city school must surround itself with play space, so that its children may be enticed to active games and muscle-building play—and sports not only build bodies, but train to self-government and the habit of fair play.

The organization.—Rural communities, in town or school district meeting, rule their schools and choose school boards. City schools are best organized where the city school district is an independent corporate unit whose people by free vote select the school board which rules the schools; those city schools are worst ruled where school affairs are entangled with the affairs and the politics of the city government; where school board members owe their first allegiance to the political power which appoints them, not to the schools.

The school board must control its funds and decide what funds the schools require; no schools can thrive where the power of the purse resides in a city council or other outside body, which can grant or refuse to allow the school board's estimate of the funds required for the schools, or can otherwise meddle in school management.

A city school board must not be too large; it becomes a little legislature; nothing can be considered or settled on its merits. It must not be too small; it will fall under the spell of a single strong spirit. From seven in the small city to eleven in a large, marks the range. The board needs at hand its attorney, as counselor or legal adviser; its auditor who keeps its accounts, prevents improper payments, and keeps the members advised as to the status of school funds.

The work of education is administered thru the chief educational executive, the superintendent of schools, and the assistants and supervisors who are necessary to assist him; within the broad lines laid down by the board he must organize and administer the educational work of the system. It is his duty to initiate new departures and present them to the board for sanction; to execute the plans when approved; to nominate assistants in the educational work; to see that their time is fully employed, and their energies directed toward proper ends.

The material side of the school system is best handled by its business manager. Thru this officer and his assistants, under general directions of the board, purchases are made, buildings erected, and they and the grounds about them improved and kept in repair. That important element of school management, the janitor service, is in his province. He not only purchases, but distributes supplies for schools.

The school board deals best with these its two executive officials thru two great committees which together comprise all the membership of the board. The superintendent of schools consults with the school management committee; the minor instructions come from them, the work and business of the department, after being digested by the committee, goes up to the board for approval; in the same way the buildings and property committee deals with the material affairs of the system, consulting with and advising the business manager, and passing up to the board matters which require the action of the full body.

The teaching work of the system is done by the principals and teachers, the former as the executive head in each school, bearing responsibility for its general management and success, the attentiveness of teachers to work and in following directions, the effectiveness of the janitor service, the good behavior and regular attendance of the pupils, the general comfort of all. The teacher, the ultimate agent of the system in the actual work of education, deals with the pupil; only when there is a good, loyal, zealous teacher in each room can any school system be really good. Both principals and teachers receive suggestion and counsel from the superintendent, from his assistants, and from the supervisors of special subjects who visit the schools as required and, in their offices, consult with principals and teachers who call.

The administration.—Successful administration of a city school system rests first with the school board. If its members understand good methods and follow them, if they fix the responsibilities of their executive officers, and give them power to carry out the tasks set, if they keep to the determination of general policies and beyond that are sympathetic advisers and helpers of the executive officers, then the schools prosper. But if the members are seeking for favors for themselves or their friends; if they mix politics in their board work; if they interfere with the work or the professional recommendations of the executive officers, and "jog their elbows" whenever the officials try to carry out an important piece of work; then only inefficiency and disaster can result.

Administration depends upon the executive officers. If given a free hand, within proper limits, they are well advised as to measures and methods, able to make wise selection of assistants, and organize well the forces under their charge; if they have courage to say "yes" and insist upon it when necessary; if they can say "no" and stick to that with equal firmness; if they keep in touch with their committees in all matters demanding consultation, then the administration will be successful and strong.

Successful administration depends upon the public and the press. If the press has an interest to report the facts without "color," and does not hesitate to praise or to blame, as required, then are the citizens greatly aided in forming a just estimate of the schools and their administration. If the people inform themselves as to what is being done or attempted, either thru the press, by visiting the schools, or by consulting with the school officials, then the schools are likely to have the sympathetic support, financial and moral, of the people who pay for them. But if the press carps, or misrepresents; if influential citizens, either aspiring to public notice or adverse to reasonable expenditure, attack the schools without due information; if politicians attempt to climb to favor and to office by pulling down the schools, then is administration difficult and success more than doubtful.

SECONDARY EDUCATION

CHARLES HUGHES JOHNSTON

For the first time in our educational life as a nation we have consciously and in earnest set about the work of educating all our adolescents, male and female. For the first time we are calling with one voice for scientific and attested principles upon which to base our high-school administration. For the first time we are really seeing, not acknowledging, the socializing work to be done by the high school. Our ideals are shifting from the vague, general, externally imposed standards of mental discipline and college preparation to those translatable into twentieth-century individual and social requirements: sound health and a health conscience; the ability to use the intellect upon the problems in the give-and-take of ordinary social, civic, and commercial life; taste and the observance of the demands for the beautiful in both personal and community concerns; an economic sense which demands soundness and integrity in business; a civic and moral consciousness which upholds and contributes to the community ethics upon which social progress depends; and a religious sense which assures loyalty to a permanent system of values. If our one and one-fourth million adolescents now in American high schools acquire these things, our nation's future is assured. The demands are insistent and they are elemental.

The problems of American secondary education are naturally multiplying. In addition to the traditional and generally accepted problems of high-school administration and the supervision of instruction, there is evolving what we may term a new educational science in regard to the strictly social administration of high-school work. The supervisory program ahead requires that we work out and put in operation a system of general principles of adolescent pedagogy which is clearly based on the problems arising out of the age of the high-school student and his likely participation in the activities of his community. This done, we must refine the special pedagogies of all constants in the curriculum, and evolve from the same basic point of view workable pedagogies for the newly admitted branches. No old pedagogies can serve us here. This is a decade's program.

Far beyond this instructional program, however, the social administration of our high school presents alluring problems of a novel but critical character. These have to do, first, with more firmly establishing the conception of secondary education as a social enterprise as well as an instructional operation; second, with the institutional relationships which the high school must sustain to other and similar agencies of democracy; and third, with those problems of the various organizations within the high-school body itself. Under each of these divisions pioneering treatises must be written, systematic experimentation carried on generally, and the socializing function established as a matter of fact, not as an easy assent to a generality, established so that the complex industrial and moral currents of the modern world may interpret and not obscure the high school's mission.

Heretofore we have been sadly unaccustomed to think co-operatively upon these problems. Unlike the professionalism which has to an extent guided the development of lower and higher grades of education, the high school has meandered along somewhat aimlessly in academic paths and has been strangely unmindful of the interesting and urgent work waiting to be done. Now exploitation of this waiting work has begun. The people, the patrons, the taxpayers, the citizens, have caught the spirit of looking for results. The administrators of high schools, superintendents, principals, supervisors, and teachers, are doing genuine curriculum thinking. And these resulting curriculum variations, adapted to student groups classified with reference to social and individual needs, are as naturally put in operation today as they were ignored twenty-five years ago. We accept the fact that the high school is a socializing institution. High-school supervision likewise is being recognized as a problem itself which cannot be dismissed nor solved merely by the importation into the high school of principles discovered to apply elsewhere. With this is coming among high-school teachers the professional spirit and consciousness which have been until recently so conspicuous by their absence. Standards are being recognized for high-school teaching, and certification laws in most states look definitely toward a long-desired minimum standard for admittance into the high-school teaching profession. Parallel with these encouraging tendencies has come the institutional recognition of the field of secondary education by colleges and universities. Secondary education has itself become a department of study in these higher curriculums with an actual model high school as its laboratory. It constitutes a field for research where one may hope soon to be able to call in the service of experts and to have available results of scientific investigations.

Surveys of state conditions for high-school teaching show concrete problems in bewildering numbers and varieties, both administrative and pedagogical. The sign of progress is just this fact, that we can survey, name, and work definitely toward the ultimate solution of these problems. Every state is in some serious way devising a method and imbedding it in statute for providing free high-school education for all its boys and girls. State recognition of its own obligation in the matter of high-school education is of profound significance. Equally so is the modern relation of colleges and universities to high schools. Entrance requirements are gradually coming to have a different educational meaning. Instead of externally imposed informational tests of arbitrarily chosen subject-matter, they now are looked upon as co-operative devices which may safely insure a reasonable standard of proficiency on the part of the graduating high-school student, regardless of the subject-matter which was used to bring about this proficiency. College inspection of high schools has accordingly changed its character where it existed before, and become a co-operative administrative and supervisory work for making one educational institution more successfully articulate with another. Where entrance examinations are still in operation, they have changed their character correspondingly.

With this impetus to become self-orienting the American high schools have forsaken the earlier ideal of uniformity and conformity to a standard type academically conceived for them by outsiders. Hundreds of high schools now have their own individuality, as, for different reasons, Grand Rapids, Louisville, or Richmond, Ind., to say nothing of the industrial and agricultural and commercial variations of the type. An almost analogous issue to that of separate kinds of high schools is that of the differentiation and multiplication of curriculums within the single high school itself. With these artistic, domestic, and otherwise vocational colorings for our different curricula or high-school plants, as the case may be, have come inevitably the related human obligations. We are face to face with these personal problems of vocational guidance and the somewhat less frequently formulated but probably more fundamental one of avocational guidance. Related in turn to these problems, which must find expression finally thru some systematic and approved method of high-school administration, comes the question of how in defined procedure one is to set about moral instruction and training which will enable high-school students to possess and obey a twentieth-century moral conscience.

In short, the question of secondary education is uniquely one of how most adequately to formulate a working conception of the high-school organization, how to extend its reach to all our adolescents and how to refine our procedure in accordance with such ultimate purposes. The prime issue is shifting from the literal but important secondary question of extension over four years or five or six years, including upper grades, or six including first two years of college, and shifting from the impersonal and more or less superficial problem of how to direct the academic procedure of imparting some choice bits of information from stores precious by virtue of mellowness of age, to that of training the student's powers as social usage and our common life demand. High-school education, however it may differ from other grades of education, is not, in our civilization, primarily a luxury, academic or otherwise. It is in the broad sense a necessity. Fortunately it at length burdens the community conscience, and has become the measure of our educational democracy.

THE RURAL SCHOOL

HAROLD W. FOGHT

Rural education must reflect our agricultural life.—The rural school is the educational institution of the open country and the rural-minded village. It is the school of the half of the American people producing the raw materials from the soil, and as such it must reflect the daily life and interests of our agricultural population. This does not mean that the schools are to be solely agricultural in nature. The universal elements of education must continue, as heretofore, to hold first place in the schools; but there must be a new emphasis placed on local application to country community needs. The schools must be organized on principles broad enough to produce an agricultural citizenship of highest ideals, filled with a desire to live their lives on the farm absorbed in the intensive cultivation of the soil. Clearly stated, the rural schools must aim to make more scientific farmers than we now have; must make the occupation more remunerative, and the whole life in the open country more worth living and freer from city domination.

Changes in national life and in school systems must go hand in hand.—There was a time in our history when all the schools, town and country alike, had more things in common than now. This was before steam and electric power gave us the great machine age with its greatly specialized city life. The first rural teachers were city-bred and city-trained; had city ways and sympathies, and brought with them to the country the city courses of study. But in the early days this was of little consequence, since even city life, so called then, was provincial in nature, in many ways scarcely more than an overgrown rural life. But times have changed. Our towns have become mighty centers of commerce and manufacture. The needs of city life have found expression in courses of study preparing the children for the new and varied activities there. But the rural schools have been slow to put themselves in consonance with the great changes in our national life. It has been difficult to realize that the rural district should have a school system of its own, complete in itself, independent of courses of study formulated for city children. All of which is quite possible of realization without sacrificing any of the universal elements of education which are the same whether given in the country or in town.

Gradual reorganization of the rural-school system.—Educators have for some time realized that rural schools cannot fill their mission well so long as they remain complementary to city schools. That it is quite possible and practicable to organize schools for the open country and rural villages unaffected by city schools has been demonstrated in a definite way by leading agricultural nations of Europe. The beginnings are being made in some parts of the United States to re-establish the old principle of "equal rights for all," by providing in the country, for country people, as complete a system of education as is being offered the youth of the cities. But these beginnings, while encouraging, are at present wholly inadequate. The reorganization must provide, within reach of all country children, carefully graded elementary schools, and a sufficient number of rural high schools adapted to the particular needs of the given community, to the end of giving country folk a genuine farm culture and a scientific knowledge of agriculture without going away from home to secure it. Such reorganization may be expected to furnish the trained leadership required to put our rural population on a more stable social-economic basis.

Rural teaching as a life-profession a first essential in this reorganization.—The trained leadership needed in country districts cannot be realized until a staff of teachers, professionally trained and with the right vision and power, establish themselves there as permanent teachers. The peripatetic one- or two-term teachers have failed to establish themselves in country leadership, and must go.

This change from amateur to professional teaching can be hastened (1) by providing, thru legal enactment, liberal sliding-scale salary, increasing definitely with the length of tenure; (2) by making it obligatory upon the community to erect teachers' cottages, thus keeping the teachers in the country permanently; and (3) by encouraging teachers' colleges, normal schools, high schools with teacher-training classes, etc., to organize thoroughgoing departments in country life and country teaching, from which to draw the teachers willing and able to undertake the difficult task of teaching real farm schools.

Satisfactory unit of organization.—Of as vital importance as professional teaching is the adoption of a unit of organization large enough so that the management of the school may be efficient, economical, and intelligent. The small independent district of the open country has generally proved too small to be intrusted with final legislation in matters of importance. Especially is this true where the taxing power is concerned. The union of several townships into strong administrative units is to be commended for the older states where the township (town) is the unit in local government. In the middle-western and western states a change should be made from the small district, as well as township, to the county basis of organization. When one school board, elected from the area at large, controls all the schools, a more uniform standard of excellence and equality in school provision is sure to prevail. In sections where the large unit prevails, excellent results may already be seen in the consolidation of weak, retarded schools into real farm schools ready for the professional teacher.

Trained supervision of rural schools.—Rural-school supervision, as now generally practiced, does not discharge the important duties of close, intelligent, helpful supervision. This problem is difficult of solution, especially in the sparsely populated sections. But, generally speaking, steps should be taken immediately to provide each state department of education with a number of state rural-school supervisors, who help local supervisors to standardize their efforts. Local supervision must be made close enough to be genuinely helpful, and this contemplates a continuous professional relation between local supervisors and teachers.

A redirected course of study.—As indicated above, the course of study must in its special interest be agricultural in nature, i.e., it must be based on country-life needs. The program to be adopted should in all particulars economize the time of teachers and pupils alike. The reorganization demands that greater attention be paid to a thoroughgoing teaching of the fundamental studies; but will at the same time necessarily force some subjects that have long held place in the traditional curriculum into the background, since these have failed to express the activities and needs of the community. New subjects of vital importance to rural progress are finding places in the new courses of study. Thus nature-study, agriculture, manual training and domestic science, farm accounting, music, physical education, etc., must speedily come to play an important part in the life of progressive farm schools.

In the main, however, the process of redirection is not so much one of adding new subjects to the curriculum as of putting new heaven into the old essentials. To illustrate: the schools are already teaching less of stocks and bonds, cube root, and Troy weight, and more of dairy problems and rotation of crops, spraying mixtures and handy farm methods.

A strong consolidated rural school.—The rural school of the future is to be a farm school—a school that will relate itself to the life of the rural community. It must be built with this in view, in ample ground, i.e., nature's own laboratory. It must be sanitary and well adapted to the new kind of teaching; it must be attractive and so large and centrally located as to become from the first the natural community center for intellectual, social, and other purposes.

In states where for good reasons the one-teacher school will continue to persist for many years to come it should be made incumbent on the state superintendent of public instruction, or other authority appointed for this purpose, to see that the faulty lighting and ventilation and general utter lack of sanitary appliances of these schools be remedied. It is especially to be recommended that the old-fashioned outdoor toilets be abandoned altogether. Common decency and good morals demand a thorough reform in this breeding-place of vice. Anywhere in the open country where it is possible to obtain flowing water, sanitary indoor toilets can be constructed at a surprisingly small cost.

Rural schools the most vital factor in solving the rural-life problem.—Of the many factors entering into the socialization of American rural life none is more vital than the rural schools. For it is school education, after all, that must furnish the leadership so essential to the solution of the rural-life movement.

In summary then: (1) without strong men and women professionally prepared for their work in the redirected rural schools, there can be no satisfactory adjustment of rural life; and (2) unless the schools are reorganized on a more satisfactory basis for administrative and supervisory purposes the schools themselves cannot become genuinely "redirected" nor their management become honestly efficient, economical, and intelligent.

CHILD HYGIENE AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOL

LEONARD P. AYRES

Health is the foundation on which rests the happiness of a people and the power of a nation. To insure the efficiency of its citizens, the state requires its youth to attend school and pursue studies designed to contribute to that efficiency. But individual efficiency rests not alone on intelligence and education; it is equally dependent on physical health and vigor. Hence, if the state is to make mandatory training in intelligence, it must also provide training to secure physical soundness and capacity. Education without health is useless. It would be better to sacrifice the education, if in order to attain it the child must lay down his good health as a price.

We therefore indorse all agencies which extended and varied experience has shown to better the health of school children, safeguard them from disease, render them healthier, happier, and more vigorous, and to insure for them such physical and mental vitality as will enable them to take full advantage of the free education offered by the state.

Among such agencies, the following are of special importance:

1. Medical inspection for preventing the spread of contagious disease; and for the discovery and cure of remediable physical defects.
2. Dental inspection for the purpose of securing sound teeth among school children.
3. School nurses, who work with doctors, teachers, and parents to improve the health of the children.
4. Open-air schools, for giving to the physically weak such advantages of pure air, good food, and warm sunshine as may enable them to pursue their studies while regaining their physical vigor.
5. Special classes for the physically handicapped and mentally exceptional in which children may receive the care and instruction fitted to their needs.
6. School gardens, which serve as nature-study laboratories, where education and recreation go hand in hand, and increased knowledge is accompanied by increased bodily efficiency.
7. School playgrounds, which afford space, facilities, opportunity, and incentive for the expression of play instincts and impulses.
8. Organized athletics, which aid in physical development, and afford training in alertness, intense application, vigorous exertion, loyalty, obedience to law and order, self-control, self-sacrifice, and respect for the rights of others.
9. All adjuncts of better sanitation in schoolhouses, such as sanitary drinking-cups and -fountains, systems of vacuum cleaning, improved systems of lighting, heating, and ventilation.

The health movement in our public schools has been transformed during the past decade from a purely negative movement, having as an object the avoidance of disease, to a splendidly positive movement, having as its aim the development of vitality. We desire for the youth of the future schools in which health instead of disease will be contagious, in which the playground will be as important as the book, and where pure water, pure air, and abundant sunshine will be rights and not privileges. In these schools the physical, the mental, and the moral will be developed together and not separately; the child will live not only in healthful surroundings, but in surroundings where he will acquire habits of health which will be life-long.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

EDWIN GILBERT COOLEY

DAVID SNEDDEN, COLLABORATOR

I. The complete aim of education may be variously expressed as preparation for citizenship, self-realization, etc.

II. The complete aim of education may be subdivided into four principal concrete aims, each having a definite place in contemporary education: (a) physical education, which prepares persons for prolonged physical health and bodily usefulness; (b) vocational education, which prepares the individual for the useful and effective performance of the duties related to self-support; (c) civic and moral (or social) education, which trains the individual for effective participation in group life as citizen, patriot, parent, etc.; and (d) cultural education, which fits the individual for effective participation in the æsthetic, intellectual, and other cultural activities of civilized life.

III. It is desirable that opportunities for vocational education in schools shall not be restricted only to those entering the professions, but shall be made available for all. Vocational education heretofore has been carried on by other agencies than schools. These agencies are no longer adequate for the needs of modern society. The school system must, therefore, supplement the other agencies and should include:

1. A system of elementary schools, including kindergartens, which cover the period from infancy and childhood up to the age of fourteen or fifteen. The purpose of the work of the elementary school should be all-round development including training of the eye and hand, as well as covering the ordinary academic ground in the field of literature, geography, history, and the three R's.
2. A system of secondary schools, both academic and technical, for youth who can devote more time (a) to their education before entering business or industrial life, or (b) to the preparation for the colleges and universities.
3. A system of higher institutions, including those which prepare for the professions, such as law, medicine, engineering, etc.
4. A system of vocational continuation schools, part-time and full-time trade or technical schools for youth who wish, or are compelled, to enter vocational life without broader foundation provided by the secondary schools, the colleges, and the universities.

It is desirable that the vocational schools suggested under subdivision 4 be added to our present school system, both as a means of preparing the individual for self-support and with a view to supplying that minimum of instruction and training which is indispensable as a preparation for citizenship. No school system can safely permit its pupils to leave at fourteen. At this time character-building really begins; the boy or girl is usually subjected to new temptations and new responsibilities. If the instruction and guidance of the school is not continued, much of the result of the previous instruction in the elementary school will be lost. As Frederich Paulsen says: "It will be the mightiest problem of the twentieth century to build upon the elementary school as a general and fundamental form of school a new finishing educational institution, or to give to the elementary-school instruction its necessary conclusion in a kind of vocational high school; a school whose problem will be the carrying forward and making fruitful of the general education for vocational activity."

IV. Vocational education is a problem of adolescence and can rarely be carried on with young people under fourteen years of age. The most effective vocational education, therefore, will be that provided in schools for young persons from fourteen years of age upward.

V. Vocational education will require for its complete development a great variety of institutions and agencies, according to the occupations for which preparation is being made. Some of these will be all-day schools, some evening schools, some part-time schools, and some seasonal schools; but no school for boys and girls between fourteen and eighteen should be held in the evening or after the completion of a day's work in a vocation.

VI. All vocational education requires that during its progress somewhere and somehow the individual intimately concern himself for a considerable portion of his time with concrete productive work. If possible this should be carried on in commercial establishments on a part-time or other basis.

VII. Vocational education should be made compulsory for young people from fourteen to eighteen years of age who are not in other forms of school. This can be done on the so-called part-time basis, the state requiring that young persons of these ages shall attend a vocational school for at least four hours per week.

VIII. Vocational education in schools for the rank and file of workers can be carried on with public support and under public control.

IX. The support of vocational education should not be provided only by the local community. Owing to the mobility of labor, the benefits of vocational education tend to diffuse themselves; hence it is only equitable that the state as well as the local community should assist in meeting the cost of vocational education.

X. While it is especially important that this new type of school which takes boys or girls on leaving the elementary school and provides a practical vocational education should also consider the needs of the man and the citizen, on the other hand it must be recognized that the vocation should stand as the central point of this system of instruction as the occupations of man stand at the central point of every well-regulated life and exercise a reaction upon all the remaining activities. A good citizen will necessarily be a man or woman who is both able and willing to earn a decent living.

XI. Such vocational schools will keep in mind that the boys and girls in them are endowed with the usual interest in amusements and social activities of various kinds. In the organization of such schools, therefore, play and excursions, entertainments and festivals, libraries and reading-halls, tools, books, and other apparatus must be supplied them. The problem is here as elsewhere with the whole boy and includes this recreation.

XII. "No boy or girl ought to be treated," as Churchill put it, "merely as cheap labor." Up to eighteen years of age every boy and girl who is not in school should be learning a trade or vocation, as well as earning a living. No person should be permitted to employ boys or girls during the formative years without assuming some responsibility for their learning a vocation.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE AND EDUCATION

ELLWOOD P. CUBBERLEY

An important new function which our schools must assume is that of instilling into the minds of the next generation such ideals of universal brotherhood and the interrelations of peoples as will tend to promote international peace and good will. The world of today is vastly smaller than it was even half a century ago, and at the same time life in it is vastly more significant. Today, as a people we belong to the world and no longer to a township or a county. Each year sees the different nations drawn into closer intellectual and commercial relations, and this process is certain to continue. The consolidation of diverse peoples into nations of size and importance; the breaking-down of the old racial barriers; the spread of knowledge and education; the progress of trade and manufacture; the increasing ease of intercommunication; the intermigration of peoples; the newer concepts of law or order, and the rapidly increasing expense of even armed peace—these are forces of importance looking toward the time when wars between nations shall cease, when the international courts shall be established, and when the present barriers in the way of international commerce shall be in large part superseded by laws promoting national specialization and international trade.

In addition to mere instruction, our schools should take upon themselves the work of instilling into the minds of the children ideals of these larger world-relationships. To this end our histories are being rewritten, with a view to eliminating much of the present emphasis on wars, party contests, and glorification of the country right or wrong, and emphasizing instead peace, friendliness, and larger world-conceptions, and dwelling upon the progress of civilization and the finer deeds of heroism instead of on the butchery and self-sacrifice of war. Our school readers need to be touched by something of the same international spirit, and our geographies should incorporate more relating to the civilization of peoples.

It is often stated that it will be some time before wars between nations shall cease. The best hope lies in making a beginning somewhere, and our schools offer the best place to begin. To teach kindness, courtesy, humanity, and international honor, and to emphasize the importance of the arts of peace, are as important functions of our schools as instruction in the accumulated knowledge of the ages.

JAKOB BOLIN, of Utah: I am instructed to offer an amendment to this printed statement of principles concerning child hygiene in public schools.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: You have heard the proposed amendment as an addition to No. 8. What is your pleasure?

MR. BAKER: Mr. President, may I speak for the committee? Of course, this body has power to amend without limit. The committee is not recommending the adoption of these papers, and we were trying to avoid a discussion which might last all summer, and the reading of these papers which would take another week, by putting the recommendation in the form in which it was presented, namely, that these papers be received and printed. I fear that if we begin to make amendments, we may find ourselves here for days. I have no objection if you desire to proceed in that way, but I think these should be received and printed.

MR. PEARSE: I rise to a point of order. Our by-laws require that, unless by unanimous consent, all these matters shall go to the Committee on Resolutions. It hardly seems fair to bring this matter upon the assemblage here without an opportunity for any consideration at all.

R. B. TETRICK, of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I want to ask if No. 5 doesn't cover the amendment or addition proposed to No. 8?

MR. KEYES: I understand that Mr. Pearse has raised a point of order. May we legally consider any amendment of this kind? I call for a ruling of the Chair.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I think the point of order is correct, inasmuch as resolutions are to be introduced to the Committee on Resolutions at a certain time. The Chair will rule the motion out of order.

Previous motion put and carried.

MISS HALEY: Where are these to appear?

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: They will appear in the Yearbook.

MISS HALEY: Well, I object to some of them.

MR. BOLIN: May I add one word of explanation? The Committee on Resolutions announced that it would meet before the Department of Physical Education met. We don't object to that declaration, but we think it peculiar that one of the agencies recognized for so many years has been omitted simply by an oversight.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: In answer to the last statement, I wish to call attention to the printed notice in the official program found on page 11, in which this statement is made:

A meeting of the Committee on Resolutions will be held in Room C41, Hotel Utah, Tuesday afternoon, July 8, at 1:30 o'clock, to afford an opportunity for any to present resolutions they may wish the committee to consider.

E. S. BROWN, of California: I move we reconsider that vote.

Motion seconded.

MR. FAIRCHILD: It is moved and seconded that the vote to receive and print these resolutions be reconsidered: Are you ready for the question?

MR. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I want to say that the reception of that report practically amounts in the eyes of the world to an indorsement from this body of these principles and of these resolutions and they haven't been discussed here. There are things in them which I seriously object to, and there are others here who object to them, and I object to their going forth as the sentiment or resolutions of this body.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Are there any further remarks?

MISS HALEY: Mr. President, I didn't know that the motion you were putting was a motion to receive the report. I don't know what is in here, but I do know that there are some things here that I should like to have an opportunity to read before I should care to see this Association on record as receiving them. I think this should lie over for a year, and then if we want to receive it, all right.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The Chair would like to observe, in view of the statements made to the effect that the members have not had an opportunity to read these resolutions, that the President appointed this committee in March, and, as stated by Mr. Baker, the resolutions were printed and distributed at the time of enrollment. Then we went to the expense of having them reprinted in order that all changes might be known. Now, the Chair in making this statement is not making any plea for the adoption or the reception of these resolutions, but he has felt for years that the proper way to get resolutions before people was to print them and give them out in advance of the meeting at which they were to be presented. We felt happy in doing this at this time, and it seems to me that any inferential charges that there has not been an opportunity heretofore afforded to read them is just a little imprudent. Are you ready for the motion?

Motion put and lost.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Mr. Baker will proceed with the resolutions.

MR. BAKER: We have some resolutions of the ordinary sort, and I will read this one:

WHEREAS, The Panama-Pacific International Exposition will be held in San Francisco in 1915, and

WHEREAS, The central thought of the Exposition will be the progress of the world thru education, and

WHEREAS, It is desirable that the relation which education in the United States has borne to this general advance be clearly shown from a national standpoint, therefore be it

Resolved, That the National Education Association favors a national education exhibit for the Exposition, to be assembled, if found practicable, and directed by the United States Bureau of Education.

Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of that resolution.

Motion seconded and carried.

MR. BAKER:

Resolved, That the President of this Association appoint a committee of three whose duty it shall be to consider the suggestions made by President Fairchild in his presidential address, to make a careful study of the present organization of the National Education Association, and to recommend to the directors at their next annual meeting any plans that, in their judgment, will make for increased efficiency and greater usefulness of the Association.

The committee recommends the adoption of that resolution, and I make the motion.

Motion seconded and carried.

MR. BAKER:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the President-elect of this Association, one from a state university which includes a college of agriculture; one from a state university which does not include a college of agriculture; one from a normal school; and two superintendents of city schools, to confer and advise on behalf of the National Education Association with any committee or commission which may be appointed by the Congress of the United States to frame legislation for federal aid to vocational education, or to consider plans for such action by the federal government, or which may be considering legislation to that end which may be pending before Congress.

The committee recommends the adoption of this resolution.

Motion seconded.

E. L. HOLTON, of Kansas: I should like to ask if that excludes agricultural colleges that are not affiliated with the state university?

MR. BAKER: The intention is that an agricultural college connected with a university shall be represented.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I should like to add that I sympathize with Mr. Holton's inquiry. It seems to me that we might add to that committee, if agreeable, a representative of the state superintendents as well, and it seems to me that an agricultural college not affiliated with any state university should be recognized. Perhaps I am just a little partial in that matter, but I think that is right.

MR. HALE: I want to move to amend the resolution so that it reads a "committee of seven, one of whom shall be a representative of an independent agricultural college, and one a representative of the state superintendents," in addition to the five as enumerated.

MR. KERR: I should like to move an amendment to the amendment to the effect that there be one representative of the city schools, one representative of state universities, one representative of normal schools, one representative of state superintendents, and one representative of land-grant institutions, or state agricultural colleges. That will leave the number as originally stated by the chairman of the committee—five—which will give the universities one representative; the agricultural colleges one representative; the state superintendents one representative; the city superintendents one representative; and also the normal schools one representative. That gives you a committee of five which is entirely representative, and it seems to me far better than the proposition now before the house.

Amendment accepted by maker of first amendment.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Those favoring that will say Aye.

Motion carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: We are ready to vote upon the question as amended.

Motion put and carried.

MR. BAKER:

Resolved, That we the members of the National Education Association in convention assembled do hereby express our grateful appreciation and most sincere thanks to the teachers and citizens of Salt Lake City and the state of Utah for the glad welcome extended to us, coming from every state in the Union; for the extensive and efficient work by the Committee of Arrangements, who have provided so generously for the official registration of members and for the educational exhibits, and in various ways have contributed so largely to the success of all meetings of the convention; and for the generous and valuable co-operation and assistance rendered by the press of the city and state. We also desire to express special appreciation of the beautiful decorations of the city, of the remarkable musical entertainments, of the attractive excursions provided, and especially of the excellence of all halls for meetings, from the great Tabernacle to the halls and rooms for the smallest societies and committees.

I move the adoption of that resolution.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: We will carry this motion by rising vote. The motion is carried unanimously.

MR. BAKER:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Association are hereby cordially and appreciatively extended to its honored President, Dr. Edward T. Fairchild, for his loyal devotion to the highest interests of the Association, as chief executive officer during the past year, which has resulted in the valuable programs and remarkably successful meetings of the general sessions and of all departments of this our Fifty-first Convention.

Mr. Secretary, I move the adoption of that resolution.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: You have heard the motion; those in favor of the adoption of the resolution rise.

Motion unanimously carried.

MR. BAKER: Mr. Chairman, as to the papers or resolutions presented to me after coming into this meeting, it will be impossible to assemble the committee for their consideration, and I see no better way than to place the papers in the hands of our Secretary.

MR. GROSZMANN: As it came out before, the different sections have their meetings at various times, so that it will be impossible for them to make any suggestions to the Committee on Resolutions. Now if these meetings of the various departments have any meaning at all, they will some time result in some practical suggestions which might be formulated in the way of resolutions. There is no possibility today of deciding upon any different method, but I would suggest that the Executive Committee, or whatever committee has charge of the arrangements, provide some way of giving the various departments an opportunity to present their conclusions so that they might be embodied in the resolutions.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: It is customary, or has been heretofore, to appoint your Committee on Resolutions at the annual meeting. Now it seems to me that this committee might inaugurate the policy of providing a meeting of the resolutions committee not later than January, that the printing of their findings be not later than, say, April, that they be sent to the active members at that time, so that there may be time to go over them, and, as nearly as possible, to secure the real consensus of opinion.

MR. KEYES: It seems to me that suggestion is so wise that we can adopt it at once. I move you that the recommendation of the Chair that the incoming President be requested to appoint a resolutions committee not later than January, and that the findings be printed not later than April, and mailed to the active members, be adopted.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: We have a bulletin that will be issued on the first of June, and it could get to the active members thru that bulletin.

MR. KEYES: Well, in that bulletin which is issued on the first of June. I move that such a motion be adopted.

Motion seconded.

MR. PEARSE: I will say that while the by-laws require that the committee be appointed at the first meeting of the Association, there is no reason why the chairman should not notify the members of that committee several months in advance. The bulletin suggested by Mr. Keyes will bear this information of all formally prepared resolutions to the members, and they will know beforehand what they are. I would suggest that some date be set for the meeting of this committee after the meeting of most of the departments, and in some way that these resolutions be placed in a public place so that all who care to inform themselves may do so.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The Chair thanks Mr. Pearse for the suggestion.

MR. OWEN: I should like to suggest that the Secretary be instructed to be very careful in ordering them printed to make a distinction between the few resolutions which were adopted and those which were not.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Those favoring the motion as to the earlier appointment of the resolutions committee and the printing of the resolutions and sending them out, will say Aye.

Motion carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: There is left over from last year a notice given by Mr. Johnson, of South Carolina, of the following proposed amendment to the by-laws, which shall have a separate article number, as follows:

In order to preserve the national character of the National Education Association and maintain the allegiance of all the teachers of all the states of the United States and thus insure the continued usefulness of the Association to the cause of education in this country, the President, Vice-President, and other elective officers of the Association shall be voted for by states and territories, each state and territory being given its fair and just quota of votes in accordance with the rules governing the representation of each state and territory now in force, for the presidential conventions of both of the great parties; the vote of each state and territory being cast by the director of the state or territory in accordance with the majority vote of the active members in attendance upon the Association from each state and territory; provided, No state or territory shall be entitled to vote a greater number of votes than the number of active members enrolled in that state or territory; the election of President and other elective officers of the Association being determined by the majority of the votes thus cast in the meeting of the National Education Association held for the election of such officers.

D. B. JOHNSON, of South Carolina: I offered that motion at Chicago at the last meeting of the Association after a conference with a number of the leaders of the Association. If that amendment is adopted, then all of this question of unfairness, all of this suspicion that now prevails in certain quarters that advantage is taken, will disappear. I believe that it will satisfy the teachers of the whole country, and it can be very easily put in operation. All that will be necessary will be to have banners representing the different states. The active members from each state will gather under their state banners, and vote by states. It will be very easy, and my feeling is this: If the nominations by the nominating committee are accepted, if there is no personal contest, then the separate vote is not called, but if there is a contest, then I submit that it is nothing but fair, just, and right that we do this. It is something that this Association ought to stand for—that every state in the Union should have its just and fair vote. If we want to keep this as a National Education Association, satisfy the teachers of the country, and have them rally around us, then something of this kind has got to be done, and I think further that if it is done it will interest still more of the teachers of the country in this great Association. I think it is the right thing, the just thing, and the wise thing for this Association to do, and I move the adoption of the amendment.

Motion seconded.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Permit the Chair to suggest that this is a matter of far-reaching importance; we must give it most careful consideration.

MR. OWEN: I should like to put myself on record as being in favor of some adequate representative system which would give to every state a representation, based, perhaps, on the number of members from that state. I don't believe that we are going to be successful in the long run unless we adopt some such system. I do believe, however, that a most careful study of all the factors involved should be given the matter in order to have an adequate basis for any action. While I am in entire sympathy with what Dr. Johnson says, or the main purpose of his motion, I believe that this amendment should be referred to a committee, perhaps the Committee of Five already appointed, with the direction that they report later on the advisability of some representative system. I make that motion.

Motion seconded.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: You have heard the motion as moved and seconded. Now I wish to recognize Dr. Beach.

C. E. BEACH, of Washington: I wish to call attention to the comparatively small number that we have here. As this is a far-reaching question, I am wondering whether it would be fair to the National Education Association as a body to vote upon this matter at this time. Wouldn't it be better to wait until there is a larger representation? If this matter be advertised more freely, if we have a larger number of active members present than we have today, then it would be more representative. I myself am in sympathy with such a proposition, but is it exactly the thing for us to do at this time?

MR. CARRINGTON: This matter has been under consideration for a year, and I don't see why we are afraid to vote on the proposition now. This is an amendment that would make this Association a representative body, and if within a year or longer somebody devises a better plan, that can be put in motion at some future meeting. Let us, after considering the question a year, vote upon and settle it now.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The question before the house is the referring of this very important proposed amendment to the by-laws to the Committee on By-Laws for report one year from now. Are there further remarks?

MR. GREENWOOD: I should like to ask Dr. Johnson if this proposed amendment conflicts in any way with the Charter of Incorporation? If it does, we should have to make a change. It occurs to me that this is a matter of such importance that it ought to be referred to a committee that will take into consideration the constitutionality of the question as well as its advisability.

MR. JOHNSON: I understand, tho I wouldn't speak finally and positively upon that point, that there is nothing in the Charter or in the Constitution against this action—absolutely nothing.

Motion put—to refer proposed amendment to committee—and carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Mr. Chairman, a second amendment introduced by Mr. Gillan, of Wisconsin, last year reads as follows:

If not less than thirty days before any regular meeting of the Association a petition, signed by not less than one hundred active members, requesting the resignation of an officer shall be filed with the Secretary, unless such officer shall present his resignation at the regular meeting of the active members next following the filing of such petition, a recall vote shall be taken, and if two-thirds of the active members voting shall favor the recall of such officer, a vacancy shall thereupon exist to be filled in such manner as provided for filling vacancies, and the officer thus recalled shall be ineligible for appointment or election to the same office during a period of two years after such recall.

A MEMBER: I move that it be referred to the same committee as the preceding amendment.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The Chair in the excitement of the hour failed to call for the very important report of the Committee on Necrology, and I beg your indulgence while that is presented.

THOMAS W. BICKNELL, of Rhode Island: I trust the President didn't have in mind the old adage of "Let the dead bury their dead" when he appointed me as chairman of this committee.

I have had placed in my hands quite a little literature concerning the men who have passed from our membership during the last year. These memoranda I shall not read, but shall place them in the hands of the committee to be revised so that they will appear in the Yearbook during the coming year. I simply wish to state now that thirty-four active members have died during the year. Among the most prominent in educational and reform work stands the great foreign member, Dr. Compayré, of Paris, France, the great psychologist and philosopher of French and modern education, to whom we are highly indebted for all the great work he has done. Dr. Groszmann has kindly consented to prepare a paper concerning him at the proper time. Another great educator of this country who has recently passed away is Andrew S. Draper. His record is so well known to the country that I don't propose to do anything further than simply to mention his name; the third whom I shall name is one of our ex-Presidents, who has occupied a lofty position in the state of Pennsylvania at the head of one of her normal schools, E. Oram Lyte. I hope that we shall honor them in our memory and our lives by trying to emulate their splendid examples. I move, therefore, that the report of this committee thus presented be accepted.

Motion put and carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: There was a petition presented by Miss Margaret Haley at Chicago which reads as follows:

We, the undersigned, classroom teachers, active members of the National Education Association, hereby make application to have a new department, to be known as the Department of Classroom Teachers, added to the list of departments of the National Education Association.

Under the rules this comes before you at this time for action.

A MEMBER: I move the adoption of the petition.

Motion seconded and carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: There have been placed in my hands three sets of notices with regard to amendments which will be read and filed for action a year hence, as follows:

Notice is hereby given that next year the following amendments will be offered to the by-laws: First, change the date in Section 4 of Article I from November 1 to October 1. Second, add the following sentence to Section 1 of Article II: "The Directors shall enter upon their duties at the close of the annual business meeting of the active members at which they are chosen." Third, change the name "Child Study" in Section 1 of Article V to "Child Hygiene." Fourth, add the following sentence to Section 5 of Article V: "In case there is a vacancy in the office of president of any of the departments, it shall be filled by the appointment of the President of the Association. Any other departmental vacancy shall be filled by appointment of the president of the department." Sixth, insert the words "Unless appointment has already been made" after the word "Association" in the first line of Section 1 of Article VI. Seventh, change the fourth sentence in Section 2 of Article VII to read: "The first regular meeting of the new Board of Directors shall be held within twenty-four hours after the close of the annual business meeting, the time and place of the meeting to be announced in the printed program." Eighth, change the date in Section 1 of Article VIII from November 1 to October 1.

D. W. SPRINGER

Notice is hereby given that a resolution will be presented at the next annual meeting to amend Article V, Section 1, of the by-laws relating to the names of departments so that the department commonly known as the Department of Manual Training and Art Education shall hereafter be known as the Department of Manual Arts and Vocational Education.

Per order committee appointed by the Department of Manual Training and Art Education

ROBERT J. FULLER
ARTHUR H. CHAMBERLAIN
JAMES FERGUSON

This is to give notice as required by our by-laws that at the next annual meeting (1914) a motion will be made to amend said by-laws by adding in substance the following: "Until voted otherwise, the spelling in the printing and correspondence of the National Education Association shall conform with the recommendations in the S.S.B. Circular Number 23."

W. H. CAMPBELL

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I suggest to this body that it might be well to add to the duties of the by-law committee a careful investigation and report upon these matters.

MR. GROSZMANN: I make a motion to that effect.

Motion seconded and carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: The following communication from the Board of Directors was received by me:

At a meeting of the Board of Directors, held July 7, a motion was unanimously carried that they recommend to the annual business meeting the propriety of authorizing the new Board of Directors to select the meeting-place for 1915 two years in advance, in view of the general desire on the part of the members to hold such meeting at the time and place of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. It was also recommended that an International Congress of Education be held under the auspices of the National Education Association in connection with such Panama-Pacific Exposition.

A MEMBER: I move the adoption of the motion.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The Chair will announce that he is somewhat in doubt as to the legality of such procedure, inasmuch as the Constitution and by-laws provide for that.

MR. OWEN: If I understand the resolution, it only recommends this action.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: Very well, the Chair will entertain the motion.

Motion seconded and carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: The following telegram has been received:

CHICAGO, ILL.

To the President and Members of the National Education Association

Salt Lake City, Utah:

As oldest life member, I send fraternal greetings and rejoice with you in your work of making better men and women for the world. Lincoln said to me, "Our government must rest on the schools"; Horace Mann and Henry Barnard were my warm and inspiring friends. May God bless you.

JOHN F. EBERHART

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: We have delayed the meeting of the evening a half-hour, until 8:30. The program is an especially strong one, and I shall be grateful indeed if all arrange to be present. Permit me this statement: There has been a good deal said, particularly in the newspapers, about the meeting of the active members. Sometimes criticisms have been voiced because of an apparent lack of harmony. May I congratulate this body upon the splendid success and high character of this meeting.

Approved,

EDWARD T. FAIRCHILD, President

D. W. SPRINGER, Secretary

EDWARD T. FAIRCHILD

President, National Education Association

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next report we shall call for is the report of the Treasurer. The Treasurer is present and I ask if she has any statement to make.

TREASURER GRACE M. SHEPHERD, of Idaho: Mr. President, I have not. I have the pleasure of handing you the report.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I move that the report be approved as printed.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: You have heard the motion that the Treasurer's report be approved as printed. Those in favor say Aye; contrary, No. Motion prevails.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next in order will be the report of the Board of Trustees.

CHAIRMAN JAMES M. GREENWOOD, of Missouri: You have the report of the Board of Trustees before you in printed form. I shall be glad to answer any questions.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: I move that the report of the Trustees as printed and distributed before the Directors be accepted and approved.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next in order is the report of the Secretary.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: The report of the Secretary will be printed in full in the Yearbook. The formal report of the Executive Committee is as follows:

At a joint meeting of the Board of Trustees and Executive Committee, it was decided to report to the Board of Directors that the increased expenditures for investigations for the past two years, coupled with the increased cost of the Proceedings, make it necessary to secure an increased revenue for the Association, or provide for a lessened expenditure along these two lines.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: I should like to have indicated to this body something of the details with regard to the two items of increase in expenditures.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: We are prepared to do this. Chairman Greenwood will make a report. I call your attention particularly to this report as being of the utmost importance. I trust that you will not only listen carefully, but that we may have the benefit of your conclusions later.

DIRECTOR GREENWOOD: The Treasurer's report, as submitted, shows the receipts of the year closing July 1 to be $50,277.26. The disbursements, shown in the report for the year, are $47,984.76, leaving a balance in the treasury, June 30, 1913, of $2,292.50. There are some items that apparently swell the receipts and the expenditures by a transfer of vouchers both ways, so that one would balance the other, and would not increase the real revenue as indicated here. I simply refer to that matter in passing. There are certain expenses of the Association that we call fixed expenses. There are other expenditures that have to be met. I will now present what Trustee Aley, Secretary Springer, and myself, in going over the matter as carefully as we could, consider to be a conservative estimate of the receipts and expenditures of the Association for the coming year.

The present balance will be wiped out by unpaid bills. For 1913-14, we estimate an active membership of about 7,500, which would give an income of $15,000.00 from that source. The interest on the Permanent Fund will produce about $7,000.00; associate memberships, $6,000.00; new active memberships, $1,200.00; sale of back volumes of Proceedings, $1,000.00. The total income, so far as we can see at present, will amount to about $30,200.00.

Expenditures were listed under eight heads. Fixed expenses: Board of Trustees, $800.00; Executive Committee, $1,300.00; Secretary's office—postage, clerical help, and such matters—$10,000.00; meeting of the Department of Superintendence, $500.00; the annual convention, $4,000.00; unclassified expenses, $1,000.00, making a total of $17,600.00. This does not include the printing of the Proceedings, and I wish to refer to one or two matters in this connection before I pass to the question of appropriations.

For the Boston meeting, in 1903, the total enrollment of members was 34,983. For Chicago, in 1912, the enrollment was 17,376. Now the number of volumes printed for the Boston meeting was 18,250. At that time a great many of the persons who attended the meetings of the Association did not ask for the Proceedings, in fact only about one-half did so, but everyone who went was obliged to pay the enrollment fee of two dollars. I would like to make this point clear, so that you ladies and gentlemen will keep the facts in your minds. Now for the Chicago meeting last year, the number of volumes printed was 13,500, and all are distributed with the exception of about 500. The entire expense involved in printing and distributing the Proceedings of the Boston meeting and the other reports for that year amounted to $18,387.21, while the amount paid for printing and distributing the Proceedings and reports of the Chicago meeting was $22,425.63. I simply refer to this that you may see the conditions that are confronting us at the present time. The printing and distributing of the volumes and reports for last year—that is for the year just closing and which we are now talking about—involved an expense of $22,425.63, and the special committees of investigation have already presented bills amounting to $4,936.84, making a total expense for printing and appropriations of $27,362.47. To meet a corresponding expense next year, we have—taking the difference between the $30,200.00 receipts, and the $17,600.00, fixed expenses—$12,600.00 for the publication and distribution of the Proceedings and for appropriations for special committees. This makes a deficit, I will say, of nearly $15,000.00, based on last year's experience. We estimate that the report this year—that is for this meeting—will cost about $5,000.00 less, because of a smaller associate membership. It shows, in one respect, a healthy condition when the persons attending the meetings send for the Proceedings to such a great extent. It indicates an interest in the professional side of the Association rather than in the junket as was shown by the attendance at Boston.

Probably it would not be out of the way for me to say that certain suggestions have already been made. In order to give this a proper setting I will say that, years ago, I suggested to the members of the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees that we ought to have the volume of Proceedings edited. In other words, there are a great many papers and subjects duplicated, and I believe the Executive Committee should take up the matter of seeing to it that abstracts of all papers are prepared, and that duplications, and, in some cases, discussions should be cut out. The volume is as big as the family Bible, and a great deal of the reading in it is not as good as that in the family Bible. A great many people who write papers have not looked thru the volumes to see what has already been presented. I would not say to censor all the articles, but I do believe that by cutting down some of the papers we should get better results, and I also believe that the Executive Committee ought to be authorized to reduce the volume. This would give more room, as time goes on, for the reports from the various investigations that are being carried on. We must keep within the income that we have as we see it at this time. As I said before, in some of the publications there are a good many duplications. In the Yearbook some of the things are published that appear in the Proceedings. These might be cut out from the Proceedings. Some reports might be published in serial numbers and sent out as second-class matter, and a saving made in that way.

This is the statement of affairs. I have given you the inside situation. This matter was talked over by the Executive Committee and the Board of Trustees in two meetings, and these are the facts. By doing some scissoring on the papers, by cutting out the duplications in the speeches and in the discussions, and by giving only what is really worth while, we might save about $8,000.00 a year on the volume.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: Would this so-called censoring of the papers involve an additional expense there?

DIRECTOR GREENWOOD: I suggest that each one make an abstract of his paper. The writer knows better than anybody else what the important points are. He should send in the paper and the abstract. Sometimes the Secretary writes half a dozen times to get a paper, and then he has to telegraph. I should ask the speaker once for the paper, and if it did not come then, I should let it stay out.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The printing of the Proceedings, under our by-laws, is in the hands of a Publication Committee of which the First Vice-President is chairman. The Secretary and the President of the Association are also members of this committee. They have authority to print or not to print, but they must secure the appropriation with which to print from the Executive Committee. Now I believe that this present Directorate has no authority over this matter, but I am certain that the new directors, at their first meeting on Saturday, will be glad to receive any recommendations that this body of directors may see fit to make to them, and you will note that Director Greenwood has stressed the volume of Proceedings as being the most probable point at which we can begin retrenchments. Altho our discussion here can be given to the new board only in the form of a recommendation, I personally earnestly invite a discussion by the directors on this very important subject. With this statement that there is no authority for the idea that our expenditures are greater or less carefully conserved than they have been in the past, and that it is simply new conditions that are bringing about this hiatus in our financial affairs, I leave to you the discussion.

DIRECTOR ROBERT J. ALEY, of Maine: I feel that it is exceedingly important that every man and woman present at this meeting get the exact situation. These facts could very readily be seized upon by the press of the country and some very glaring headlines made that would be misleading in every sense. It seems to me that we ought each of us to be sure that the exact situation is understood, and the first thing to understand is that there is absolutely no criticism on anything that has been done. We have lived within our income. There have been no flush expenditures. That, it seems to me, is the first proposition, just as the President stated to you a moment ago. That thought ought to be clearly in the mind of every director. He ought to be ready to tell everybody that with emphasis. It should always be clear in the mind of all of us that the increase in expenditures has been due to causes that were explained by Dr. Greenwood. Most desirable things have been happening in the increase in our membership. We want it to increase. There has been an increase in the demand from the associate members for the volume—but that costs money. I believe that at present, take it for this year, the volume and the distribution of the same has cost about $1.40, so that there is left about sixty cents from each member for fixed expenses. It seems to me that the thing that needs to be clearly in the mind is that we must find some sources for increased revenue, or find a way to decrease those charges that are not absolutely fixed. I believe that we will all agree that we need not hope to have the railroads of the country join us any more in getting an income. The operation of railroad economics and the action of the Interstate Commission have put the railroad companies in such an attitude that I think we may never expect them to collect the fee on the tickets again. I believe we may possibly increase very materially our active membership. That will increase our expenses, but it will also increase the income. The one point I had in mind in speaking to this topic at all was the importance of the question as it appears to me from the standpoint of getting before the members of the Association, and before the people of the country, and before the press, the fact that there has been nothing wrong done, the fact that there has been no waste of money, the fact that the growth of the Association—the real growth as indicated by the associate members asking for the volume, and the increase in active membership—has brought us to the situation where we are not going to have, as nearly as it can be figured from every possible source, sufficient revenue to carry on the work of the Association, and that we are not going to be able to continue spending as much as we have in the past for the volume and for investigations. It seems to me that is a plain conclusion.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: I understood the President to say that this board has no power to act, so I offer the following motion: That the Board of Trustees and the Executive Committee be requested by this body to make a definite report of the condition to the new Board of Directors, and that they make careful and practical suggestions which may be embodied in a resolution to the new board.

Motion seconded.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: You have heard the motion as moved and seconded. I want to make clear this fact, that the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees are very eager indeed to have your opinions expressed here this morning, in order that we may convey them to the new board. I will recognize Director Mott.

DIRECTOR THOMAS A. MOTT, of Indiana: I want to speak to the motion. If I understand the motion, it is that this Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees act as one committee, and, thru Chairman Greenwood, make not only a detailed statement of conditions as he has just done, but also definite recommendations to the new board. I think that it is very important that we as a body, as an old board, let the new board know that in a meeting of this character we could not go into the matter as fully as they can. I believe also that it is very important that this Association do not spend more money than it receives, that we do not report indebtedness, and that our income be very carefully used. I hope the committee will make recommendations that will make the new Board of Directors see clearly that the coming year can be financed without loss. It may require some cutting of fixed expenses, it may require large cutting in the cost of the volume, but I want to see the coming year financed safely.

DIRECTOR WILLIAM P. EVANS, of Missouri: I have read with a great deal of interest the report of the Committee on Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living. We heard it discussed Saturday. It seems to me that conditions are presented there that apply to the situation we are discussing today. I dislike very much to hear talk of retrenchment. I do not think that we can afford to take any backward steps. I am not sure that this editing of the volume will be a backward step. Again, we certainly ought not to take any backward steps with regard to the investigations that the Association is conducting with so much success. If the Executive Committee finds that the purchasing power of two dollars is not enough, then let us make the fee what is necessary. If two dollars, which was the price of the Proceedings as fixed sixty years ago, is not buying as much today as it did sixty years ago, then I think we shall have to put in some of this increase of salary which we are hoping for. By all means, let us not recommend backward steps. Let us go on if it takes more money.

DIRECTOR M. P. E. GROSZMANN, of New Jersey: I believe with Director Evans that retrenchment in matters of investigation is a bad-sounding word. It is probably true that in the printing of the Yearbook and the Proceedings duplications can be avoided. I feel that the Association should spend more for investigations. This must become an Association of research, and, therefore, the expenditures may increase. I feel we must find more sources of income, which I do not think will come in the increase of membership. As has been said, the expenses will increase with the increased membership. At present, we have only a revenue of sixty cents from each membership, and for each membership received, there would be more printed matter, and, therefore, more expense. The only way out of it is to increase the annual dues. I do not think that what two dollars can do now can compare with what two dollars could do fifty years ago, and I also feel that it would not hurt any one of us to pay a dollar more a year, which would increase the revenue of the Association considerably.

DIRECTOR A. J. MATTHEWS, of Arizona: It seems to me that we should support the volume. I believe that the Proceedings is one of the most interesting volumes that comes to our library, and am of the opinion that it is read more and referred to more often than any other volume in the normal-school library of Tempe, Ariz. The gentleman who has just spoken has, I believe, suggested the right way—either raise the dues, or charge more to those who wish the volume.

DIRECTOR WILLIAM H. CAMPBELL, of Illinois: One-third or more goes for the distribution of the volumes to the associate members—those who pay only two dollars each. Would it be well to consider the question of not furnishing the Proceedings to the associate members? Might it not be an inducement for them to become active members?

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I have been tremendously interested, Mr. President, in this discussion. Twenty-five years ago, at a meeting held in Chicago, the Association began a successful financial career. Mr. Sheldon saw the opportunity of collecting money from excursionists, who were willing to contribute to the financial success of the Association by taking advantage of special rates offered for conventions. For a number of years, those familiar with the management have foreseen a time when the railroads would cease to stimulate travel and the size of conventions by giving such favorable rates. At the meeting held in Chicago twenty-five years ago—the one to which I first referred—the first concessions were made, but at the meeting in Chicago last year, for the first time there was absolutely no concession by the railroads. The railroads have simply thrown us on our own resources. We have nothing to hope for from excursionists. Those who have had charge of this matter recognize this. The constituency of these meetings in the future must be taken from those who are interested in the Association. The membership is composed of teachers and they have asked for the volume—a membership of twenty thousand have asked for more than a membership of thirty thousand did a few years earlier. The luxuries which people must have now have increased in number and in cost. Every head of a family is confronted with the problem of having his budget increased. This Association is confronted with this same problem. The conditions of the day require more, not only for living, but for churches and schools, and also for the National Education Association.

I have been tremendously pleased to hear the note that has been struck here, the note of optimism, of faith, of courage—that the way to go forward is not to go backward. One observation that I think is worth thought. The way to look forward to increased usefulness is not to diminish our quantity of experimentation, not to get less reports like that of the Committee on Salaries and Cost of Living. Whatever we may be forced to do as a temporary measure for a year or so, we must have faith in the teachers of this country. We must hold up our banner and go forward. Five hundred thousand teachers in the United States and seven or eight thousand of them members of the National Education Association! We must fall back on the great teaching body of these United States. I believe they will respond; I believe that if they must pay the three dollars membership fee they will pay it. If we must have seventy-five thousand members instead of seven thousand, we shall get them. The promise, the inspiration still fills our hearts, and we know that we have something to look forward to that is infinitely greater, more useful, more noble than we have been able to accomplish up to this time, splendid as that has been.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: It is nearing high noon, and while the discussion will not be closed except at your pleasure, when you are ready, I shall put the question.

Motion put and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I am sure that in speaking for the Trustees and Executive Committee, I may say that we feel greatly encouraged by the spirit that we find here this morning, and I hope that the words of Director Pearce will remain with us, for I believe that the solution of this matter rests with the great teaching body of America, and, right here in this little family circle where we may talk as we wish, I want to say that I have no faith in the proposition nor use for the man who intimates that we are in a moribund condition, or that the hour of our demise has struck.

The next matter before us is the ratification of an appropriation that was made in other than a wholly regular manner. At Chicago, at a meeting of active members, a motion was offered and carried that three thousand dollars be appropriated for the work of the Committee on Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living. It is necessary, however, that the directors pass upon appropriations, and a mail vote was taken later, with the result that the vote of the active members was confirmed. This mail vote must now be ratified. If you are ready to ratify this, we will receive a motion.

DIRECTOR R. J. FULLER, of Massachusetts: I move that the action of the general meeting be ratified.

Seconded.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: In order that the record may be complete in the minutes I should like to say that the mail vote stood sixty-two in favor and none opposed.

Motion carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next matter is one of importance. You will recall that a mail vote was taken on the proposition submitted by Thomas W. Bicknell in the matter of a so-called Million Dollar Fund campaign. This proposition was presented to the Trustees and the Executive Committee. They felt that they had no power to act. The final result of their deliberations was the ordering of a vote by mail. This vote was in the affirmative and is now for ratification by the directors. I will call upon the Secretary to give us the nature of that vote.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: The communication to the Board of Directors inclosed two votes. The affirmative vote read as follows:

As a member of the Board of Directors of the National Education Association, I am in favor of the proposition to authorize Mr. Thomas W. Bicknell to enter upon a campaign to raise a Million Dollar Endowment Fund for the Association, and, at the next regular meeting of the Board of Directors, I will vote to allow bills incurred in a campaign to an amount not exceeding $500.00.

Fifty directors voted Yes. The negative vote read as follows:

As a member of the Board of Directors of the National Education Association, I am not in favor of the proposition to authorize Mr. Thomas W. Bicknell to enter upon a campaign to raise a Million Dollar Endowment Fund for the Association, and, at the next regular meeting of the Board of Directors, I will not vote to allow bills incurred in such campaign to an amount not exceeding $500.00.

Fifteen directors voted No. Seven directors declined to vote on the proposition.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: In view of the fact that a majority of the Board of Directors by mail vote authorized a contract to be entered into with Thomas W. Bicknell to enter upon a campaign to raise a Million Dollar Endowment Fund for the Association and to allow bills incurred in such a campaign to an amount not exceeding $500.00, I move that this body approve the action taken by the directors by mail.

Motion seconded and carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Do you wish to have the bills that will be paid under that motion enumerated? As a matter of fact, no bills have, as yet, been paid from the treasury. I have here the list showing them by items, and the total is under the $500.00 appropriation.

DIRECTOR: Let them take their natural course and be paid in the regular manner.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The Secretary will please read a communication from Mr. Hosic.

SECRETARY SPRINGER (reading):

JUNE 13, 1913

Mr. D. W. Springer
Ann Arbor, Mich.

DEAR MR. SPRINGER: Please find inclosed a bill of expense for my committee of the National Education Association incurred prior to July 10, 1912. On that day the Committee on Estimates allowed me $350.00 for the work of my committee. I understood this would cover the entire life of the committee. I afterward learned that a rule of the Association does not permit chairmen to send in bills for expenses prior to the date of apportionment without special action of the Board of Directors.

I have explained the situation fully to Mr. Pearse and Mr. Fairchild, and a number of the members of the Board of Directors. Both Mr. Pearse and Mr. Fairchild assured me that the Board of Directors would order my bill of expense paid as soon as the matter is presented. Please see that the matter comes before the Board of Directors at the next meeting.

It is proper to state that the committee was appointed by Mr. Edwin Miller, chairman of the English Round Table, after the matter had been approved by Mr. McKenzie, president of the Secondary Department. This was in 1911. The committee was continued by Mr. Barrett, who succeeded Mr. McKenzie as president of the Secondary Department. A bill of expense was handed to Mr. Greenwood at the San Francisco meeting, but for some reason was never acted upon. These facts will explain why the bill comes in at this late date.

I inclose receipted bills for most of the items. There was some miscellaneous stenography and expenses for stationery, postage, and the like, of which I have a complete record, but for which it is impossible to obtain receipts at this late date. I trust you will have no difficulty in handling the matter for me. I shall be most grateful for your kind attention to it.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) J. F. HOSIC

The committee was known as the Committee on College Entrance Requirements in English.

The request, if granted, will not increase the amount of the appropriation.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: What is the amount of the bill incurred before the authorization was made?

SECRETARY SPRINGER: $153.05.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I move that the request be granted.

Seconded.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: I will say as a member of the Committee on Appropriations that I am familiar with the details and I regard this as a matter of justice.

The motion prevailed.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: There is another matter that I wish to bring to the attention of the directors at this time, as it relates to appropriations. At the annual meeting of the active members at Chicago last year, resolutions were passed creating a Committee on Vocational Education and Vocational Guidance. The last clause of those resolutions read, "Resolved, That an appropriation of $500.00 be granted this committee for its work in connection with said report." This resolution was passed by the active membership, and I move that the appropriation be ratified by this board to the extent of paying the bills already incurred, which amount to about $225.00.

The motion was seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The next matter relates to a communication from Mr. James A. Barr, of California, which the Secretary will summarize.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Shortly after Mr. Barr's appointment, as manager of the Bureau of Conventions and Societies in connection with the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, and also as the chairman of the Committee on Congresses, he opened up correspondence to see what might be done toward securing the adoption by the National Education Association of a motion to have an International Congress on Education in connection with the exposition in 1915. I looked up the Constitution and the by-laws, and found that the Board of Directors is the body that is charged with the location of meeting-places. There is nothing that says they may only be located one year in advance but I suggested to Mr. Barr that, in view of the fact that a selection had never been made two years in advance, it would be well for him to ask this Board of Directors to present to the active members in their meeting on Thursday a resolution authorizing the new Board of Directors to make such a selection if they see fit. That would give to the movement the publicity necessary so that no one could raise the point that something had been done in the dark. This is a communication from Mr. Barr along that line. Certainly if we are to have an International Congress under the auspices of this Association at the time indicated, we ought to authorize it at this meeting. That will give two or three days for newspaper notice.

DIRECTOR ALEY: I move that this Board of Directors recommend to the annual business meeting the propriety of authorizing the new Board of Directors to select the meeting-place for 1915 two years in advance, and suggest the desirability of holding an International Congress of Education under the auspices of the National Education Association, in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The motion was seconded and carried.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: There were two distinguished visitors at Chicago who spoke from our platform. In such cases, it is customary to make the speakers corresponding members. They were: E. J. Russell, director of Rothamsted Experimental Station, Harpenden, England; and Baroness von Suttner, of Vienna, Austria.

I expected there would be another meeting of the new Board of Directors last year, and intended to present this matter at that time, but only one meeting was held. Therefore, I brought the matter before the Association in one of the regular open program meetings. It was informal and irregular to do so, but the unanimous consent of all present was given. I feel, however, that it should be regularly done, and make a motion to that effect.

Motion seconded and carried.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: The same statements would apply to Kate Stevens, of London, England, who appeared upon the program of the San Francisco meeting, and I move that she be made a corresponding member.

Motion seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: One of the duties of the President of this Association is to appoint a committee of three to whom shall be referred the report of the expert accountant authorized to examine the accounts and vouchers of the Secretary, the Treasurer, and the Board of Trustees. The rules provide that no one of this committee shall be either a trustee or a director. I will appoint as such committee: A. H. Chamberlain, of California; J. W. Cravens, of Indiana; and E. L. Gillis, of Kentucky.

There are two other matters of information. Under the by-laws as amended last year, the Committee on Appropriations is apparently shorn of its power, and the question of recommending appropriations is now in the hands of the Executive Committee. I wish it might be made known as widely as possible to all interested parties that the Executive Committee will hold a meeting tomorrow evening, at 8:30 o'clock, in Room 509 of the Hotel Utah, at which time and place an opportunity will be afforded those who are interested in matters of appropriations to meet the committee.

Under the change in the by-laws, it seems there can be no meeting of the new Directorate until after the close of the last regular meeting. The program has been arranged in harmony with that law and the first meeting of the new Board of Directors will be held Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock. No doubt many of those who are present members will be members of this new board. However inconvenient the hour may seem to some of us, our duty to this Association ought to insure the attendance of everyone, and, while it may be inconvenient or disturb some social plans, if the next year is to have the start that it should, we must have a full meeting of that new Board of Directors.

Secretary Springer made announcements relating to the expense bills of the directors and the meetings of the active members of the several states to be held in the afternoon.

DIRECTOR THOMAS W. BICKNELL, of Rhode Island: I wish to express my thanks for the indorsement of the work relating to the Million Dollar Fund campaign. I have assumed responsibilities, the fullness of which I have been able to appreciate somewhat as you also undoubtedly do, and I am not sure whether I should extend thanks to you, or you extend condolences to me for the work I have undertaken. At any rate, I am prepared for the job and shall carry it out to the fullest extent. I have been given carte blanche, but think I do not wish to use it. I have a platform which I should like to present, but this is not the time nor the place to present it, and I should like to inquire when and where and to whom I may present such platform.

PRESIDENT FAIRCHILD: The new Board of Directors would be such a body. If there is nothing else to come before the meeting, we shall entertain a motion to adjourn.

Motion made and carried.

DURAND W. SPRINGER, Secretary

Approved,

EDWARD T. FAIRCHILD, President.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: I believe there are some resignations that have been offered this body. The Secretary will please note them.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Resignations have been received from Director Campbell, of Illinois, and Director Putnam, of Rhode Island. Mr. Campbell in his resignation suggests the name of R. O. Stoops as his successor.

DIRECTOR THOMAS W. BICKNELL, of Rhode Island: I wish to name I. O. Winslow as director from Rhode Island.

DIRECTOR: I move that the resignations be accepted and that the persons named be elected as their successors.

Motion seconded and carried.

Number of directors present, forty-one.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: It is necessary that the directors elect members of the Council. I will appoint as a committee to report back to this body nominations for membership, Directors Aley, MacDonald, and Joyner. The next item in the order of business is the election of a member of the Board of Trustees to succeed Trustee James M. Greenwood whose term expires at this meeting.

DIRECTOR WILLIAM P. EVANS, of Missouri: I have the pleasure of presenting a nomination for this vacancy. Without any attempt to tell the merits of the gentleman, I nominate Mr. Greenwood.

DIRECTOR E. E. SCRIBNER, of Michigan: On behalf of Michigan, I desire to second most heartily the nomination.

DIRECTOR E. E. BASS, of Mississippi: I move that the Secretary be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for Mr. Greenwood.

Motion seconded and carried.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: The ballot has been cast.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: The next order of business is the election of a member of the Executive Committee to succeed Director George B. Cook, of Arkansas.

DIRECTOR C. G. PEARSE, of Wisconsin: I wish to nominate Mr. Cook to succeed himself.

Nomination seconded and Secretary directed to cast the ballot, which was done.

DIRECTOR ROBERT J. ALEY, of Maine: Your committee begs to make the following nominations for members in the National Council:

TERMS TO EXPIRE IN 1919

M. E. Pearson of Kansas City, Kans., to succeed E. Oram Lyte, of Millersville, Pa., deceased.

TO BE TRANSFERRED TO THE HONORARY LIST

William O. Riddell, of Des Moines, Iowa.

The report of the committee was on motion accepted and adopted.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: I will call upon the Secretary for any communications.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: One communication reads as follows and is presented for the purpose of completing the record with regard to the new department:

The classroom teachers met Friday, July 11, to organize the new Department of Classroom Teachers authorized by the National Education Association at its annual meeting on July 10.

The following were elected as officers:

President—Mary Rosser, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Secretary—Mary Adkisson, Denver, Colo.

(Signed) KATE TEHAN, Secretary

At the annual business meeting, the following communication from the old Board of Directors was, on motion of Mr. Joyner, received and the recommendations unanimously concurred in.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors, held July 7, a motion was unanimously carried that they recommend to the annual business meeting the propriety of authorizing the new Board of Directors to select the meeting-place for 1915 two years in advance, in view of the general desire on the part of the members to hold such meeting at the time and place of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. It was also recommended that an International Congress of Education be held under the auspices of the National Education Association in connection with such Panama-Pacific Exposition.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: I should like to inquire whether you have that stated correctly. I did not understand that there was a motion to the effect that this meeting be recommended to select a place two years in advance. I think it was merely that this meeting should recommend a place. I do not believe this body has authority to select.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: The Executive Committee must make the selection. The Board of Directors make the recommendation.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: A selection of a meeting-place cannot be made two years in advance.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: There is nothing in the Constitution and by-laws to forbid it.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: I want to make myself clear. I had no understanding that there was any such motion before the house. As the Chairman then and as the Chairman now, I believe it is impossible to bring about any such action. If not, this Directorate might this morning determine a meeting-place for all time. If they do so for two years in advance, they can do so for fifty years.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: I think it is true, Mr. President, that the matter is finally to be determined by the Executive Committee and all this board can do is to recommend.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I think the by-laws give to this body the right to select the place of meeting. It would be perfectly possible for this board to say that the next meeting shall be held in any designated place. On the other hand, this Board of Directors has no authority to bind a succeeding board. Consequently if this action is not pleasing to the next board, they may rescind it and hold their meeting where they see fit.

DIRECTOR BICKNELL: There is another matter which must be spoken of at this time. At the Boston meeting, there was a committee appointed on an International Congress of Education. This committee has been in session here. It is proposed by the committee, which consists of twenty-six members, to hold the congress in San Francisco in 1915. I am sure the committee will heartily agree with the resolution which I am sure is not an attempt to control the action of that committee.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: Mr. Chairman, I desire to say in answer to Mr. Bicknell that the resolution to which he refers is a resolution concerning an International Council of Education and not an International Congress. It has never had the word "congress" attached to it.

DIRECTOR JAMES Y. JOYNER, of North Carolina: I have a resolution which I desire to offer, and which I think will cover the case.

WHEREAS, An invitation was received at the Chicago meeting in 1912 to hold the annual convention of 1915 in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and

WHEREAS, This invitation is renewed and enlarged by an official communication from Mr. James A. Barr, director of congresses and of education of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, requesting this Association to assume the general direction of the proposed International Congress of Education in co-operation with the Exposition authorities, and

WHEREAS, This invitation has been unanimously approved by the Board of Directors at their meeting on July 8, and by the active members at the annual meeting held July 10, and by both bodies referred to this board with unanimous recommendation for favorable action, be it

Resolved, That, acting in accordance with this recommendation, under the authority and duty conferred on this board by Section 4 of Article III of the by-laws, we do hereby recommend to the Executive Committee of this Association, subject to the usual conditions as to satisfactory railroad rates and local provisions for the meetings and business of the convention, that the annual convention for 1915 be held in the city of Oakland, Cal., with the view of accepting the invitation just presented that the International Congress of Education shall be held under the auspices and general direction of the National Education Association.

Resolved, That a commission be appointed at this time to take the general charge and direction of organizing said congress in co-operation with the Bureau of Congresses of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, said commission to consist of the following:

All living ex-Presidents of this Association; the past and present United States Commissioners of Education; the Executive Committee of this Association ex officio; together with ten other active members to be appointed by the President-elect of this Association, of which commission the United States Commissioner of Education shall be ex-officio chairman, and the General Secretary of this Association shall be ex-officio secretary.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of this resolution.

Motion seconded.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, this resolution is offered at this time because of the fact that considerable time will be required to make adequate preparations for this International Congress. If we are to have a congress, work should begin at once. I understand that all the expense of that work is to be borne by the California people in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and that all the arrangements for its organization, the appointment of the executive officers, etc., have already been made. If we do not take it under our auspices, it is going to be arranged for anyway as a part of the Exposition. It would seem to me improper and unseemly and something of a reflection upon the National Education Association, if a great educational congress should be held in this country with which this Association had no official connection. These people have kindly invited us to take charge and propose to bear all the expense, and I am heartily in favor of accepting that invitation, if we have the authority to do so, and I think we have under that article. I think it is an opportunity that we cannot afford to miss. I should prefer to offer this resolution next year, but that would be too late. We must begin work now. Am I right, Mr. Barr, that the California people propose to bear all the expense?

MR. JAMES A. BARR, of California: My understanding is that California will do as California always has done in regard to entertaining conventions and congresses. It proposes to carry the cost of the congress thru memberships, and will provide all the necessary facilities and fulfill all requirements that any convention city has ever done.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: This resolution, if I understand it, contains two important propositions: First, that this Association shall enter into co-operation with the authorities of the Panama-Pacific Exposition to establish an International Congress there in 1915; second, this Association or this Directorate is asked to express a request to the Executive Committee to act two years in advance in selecting a meeting-place. Now as I read them, these are the two propositions contained in that resolution. The Chair wants the matter to be made clear.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: The only reason we want to do it now is because of the time required.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: The Chair does not see that this body has any authority on this point.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: May I ask that the section be read.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: That portion of Section 4 of the by-laws relating to meeting-places reads:

The Board of Directors shall recommend to the Executive Committee the place for holding the annual meeting of the Association, the Council of Education, and the departments.

The by-laws do not say that the recommendation shall be made each year, but that the directors shall recommend to the Executive Committee the place for holding the meeting.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: The Chair wishes to call attention to that section just read. Today it is our business to recommend and select a place for meeting next year. It is not our business to select a place for meetings, but the place for a meeting, and the by-laws seem to indicate that we are to take care of the coming year and not of succeeding years.

DIRECTOR GREENWOOD: I am in thoro sympathy with the movement to hold the meeting in Oakland in 1915. I think all of us are, but it is a question now of just how far we can bind the Directorate for next year. I shall read the whole of Section 4 because I think this is an important matter.

The Board of Directors shall elect corresponding members as prescribed by Section 8 of Article I of these by-laws, shall elect members of the National Council of Education as provided in Section 3 of Article IV of these by-laws, shall have power to fill all vacancies in its own body and in the Board of Trustees; shall recommend to the Executive Committee the place for holding the annual meeting of the Association, the Council of Education, and the departments. The Board of Directors shall approve all bills incurred under authority of the Board of Directors, the Executive Committee, or the President and Secretary acting under the authority of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee, shall appropriate from the current funds of the year the amounts of money ordered by the active members at their annual business meeting for the work of all special committees of investigation and research authorized and provided for by such active members at their annual business meeting, shall make a full report of the financial condition of the Association (including the reports of the Secretary, the Treasurer, and the Board of Trustees) to the active members at their annual business meeting, and shall do all in its power to make the Association a useful and honorable institution.

This, as I understand it, refers to one meeting all the way thru—the meeting for this current year. Now I believe it would be proper for us to pass a resolution that we in-dorse this recommendation without binding the next board at all.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: That is Mr. Joyner's recommendation.

DIRECTOR GREENWOOD: The resolution covers this point. We cannot bind our successors.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: I understand that the only practical effect of this resolution—the only thing we have authority to do now—is to recommend to the succeeding Executive Committee and Board of Directors that this meeting be held in California. No action that we take here can bind the next Executive Committee or Board of Directors, but a recommendation may be made—we always have power to recommend for the future. If this International Congress is to be organized successfully, the committee must have some assurance of a reasonable probability, at least, that the convention will be held in San Francisco in 1915. That assurance is all this recommendation will give, but if they go to work on the faith of this recommendation, I take it that no succeeding Executive Committee or Board of Directors would fail to carry out the recommendation.

DIRECTOR GREENWOOD: I believe we can meet this situation without bringing in the question of the constitutionality of this recommendation at all. I move that we omit the words "acting in accordance with this recommendation, under the authority and duty conferred on this Board by Section 4 of Article III of the by-laws," from the first resolution.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: I accept the amendment.

DIRECTOR BICKNELL: Let us understand the situation exactly with regard to this matter. Three years ago, in Boston, a committee was appointed to organize an International Congress of Education. That committee has been at work three years, and has proceeded so far as to prepare the way for an International Congress in San Francisco in 1915. This resolution, as I understand it, will take away from that committee powers that have been given to it. Commissioner Claxton is chairman of the committee, Dr. Greenwood is president, and we are entirely organized. I think there is some confusion in this matter. It seems to me that in proceeding along two lines, there will arise a conflict. I am not particular, myself, but it seems to me this matter should be straightened out.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I think we ought to understand this: If we go ahead with this resolution we shall commit ourselves to the International Congress of Education in San Francisco, and we agree to assume charge of it, appoint representatives, etc. That does not bind us to hold our annual-meeting there, however. We might be in charge of a congress there and meet in Portland, Me., or in Portland, Ore., if we see fit. This resolution commits us to go there in so far as we have authority to act, but we cannot say what the next board will do. I wish to raise another question and to make a motion for an amendment to this resolution. It seems to me that the Congress and the meeting of the National Education Association for 1915 are not necessarily tied up in the same bundle. In all probability, we shall meet in Oakland, at least I hope we may, but it is not necessary, because the Congress is to be there, that we meet there. In Chicago, at the time of the Exposition, the cost of the publication of the Proceedings of the Congress was borne by the Association. We are now in a different position with regard to finances than we were when the Proceedings were published for the Chicago Congress. I move, therefore, that we add to the resolution the words:

Provided, however, that the cost of the International Congress of Education, to be held in San Francisco under the auspices of the National Education Association in 1915, shall be borne by the Exposition Company, and that the cost of publishing the Proceedings of the said Congress, held under the auspices of the National Education Association, shall be borne by the Exposition Company.

DIRECTOR R. B. TEITRICK, of Pennsylvania: Can we tie up the California Exposition to pay our bills?

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: We can hang our acceptance upon such conditions. It has been moved and seconded as an amendment, and it is now in your hands for discussion.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: As a mover of this resolution, I accept that amendment with the consent of the second. I understand that was the proposition of the gentleman from California anyway.

MR. BARR: I can hardly, on behalf of the Exposition Company, assume the expenses without knowing what they will be. I will say that the Panama-Pacific Exposition has arranged for various congresses under the auspices of the various societies. No exposition has assumed the burden of all the expenses in connection with these organizations. California has always provided ample funds for all meetings that have come to that state. We are prepared to say that history will more than repeat itself in 1915. The funds for carrying on the Congress would, I take it, have to come thru the memberships that would be provided by California, and thru the funds provided by the city of Oakland. Sixteen congresses and international gatherings have already been scheduled for 1915. It has been my intention to make the International Congress of Education the crowning feature of the Exposition, and I believe that if this great Association undertakes the Congress, it will, with the assistance of California, be the great event of the Exposition.

DIRECTOR M. P. E. GROSZMANN, of New Jersey: I should like to understand just what I am voting on. The new aspect put upon the question by Director Pearce is a little startling to me. I understand that this meeting is to be sponsor for an International Congress of Education at the same time that the convention is held. This Association will take the responsibility for this Congress which is to be in Oakland, while the convention may be held anywhere. If this is to be the interpretation of the motion, it puts an entirely different aspect on the situation, and I should think we should know what is meant before we go any farther.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: I trust it is understood that the Chair is not antagonistic to the proposition to go to California in 1915. If it should fall to his lot to vote on that question, he would vote in its favor. The question of constitutionality seems to be raised here. If the Chair were ever so friendly, he would feel compelled to think of the constitutionality of the question, and he still thinks of it. Answering the director's question, and, at the same time, presenting the question as the Chair sees it, I will say: We are asked to stand sponsor for a certain educational proposition—that is one thing, and I think we all agree on that point; the other proposition is that we this morning recommend to the Executive Committee that they, providing things are all right, decide upon Oakland, Cal., as a place of meeting in 1915. I ask to what Executive Committee are we making our recommendation? If we are making our recommendations to the Executive Committee which comes into existence today, there is nothing in the by-laws that gives any such authorization. Now comes the modified statement which Dr. Greenwood says is in accordance with the Constitution. The Chair submits that there is no Executive Committee that can take up that matter legally except the Executive Committee that is to be in existence one year from today.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: I think it very clear that the only Executive Committee that could be meant by the language here is the Executive Committee having authority over this matter. The only Board of Directors that can be meant is the Board of Directors which, under the Constitution, has authority over this matter. It could not mean this Board of Directors, because this is the board that is making the recommendation. Therefore, it must be the next Board of Directors, who have authority over this question.

It could not mean this Executive Committee because this Executive Committee has no authority. If it is considered wiser, we can put in the year.

DIRECTOR BICKNELL: This is merely a recommendation to the next board? There is another matter I wish to speak of. As regards the expense, I will say that it should not be assumed by California, and it should not be assumed by this Association. The committee that was created in Boston in 1910 has a bill before Congress for an appropriation of $25,000 for the very purposes named herein, and I cannot see why the matter is not proceeding along lines which are absolutely necessary by the rules of this Association. If this is an attempt to take the matter out of the hands of the men who have been working for two years, if you are not satisfied with the present committee, why not put us out? Mr. Claxton is chairman, Mr. Greenwood is president, and I am secretary. I am not very anxious for the job, but I am willing to do the work. It seems to me that this is extra legislation not called for, and I move that the whole thing be laid on the table.

Motion seconded.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: I think an explanation is always in order. I think the gentleman is mistaken as to the effect of this motion. I do not think that this interferes in any way with the duties of the existing committee.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: The motion before the house is to lay on the table, which, I think, is not debatable. Those favoring the motion say Aye. Contrary, No. Motion lost. The Chair will, of course, respect your desires here, but it seems that this question should come to a vote so that we may take up other matters.

The previous motion was moved and carried.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: We shall now present the question before you: It is in effect that we stand sponsor for certain activities—I do not need to phrase them—and that this Directorate recommend to the unknown and unnamed committee of 1914 that they do certain things.

Motion put and carried.

DIRECTOR P. P. CLAXTON, of Washington: Before you leave that question, inasmuch as the Commissioner will have something to do with it, I should like to have this matter made clearer than it is at present. If there is to be an International Congress held at San Francisco under the auspices of this Association, it is necessary that we should begin at once. It will take at least the eighteen months before the opening of that Exposition and the twenty-four months before this Congress will meet to arrange matters. It cannot be done in six months or in twelve, and it does not seem to me that we have any authority, as yet, to proceed.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: I think that it may be considered that such authority is very distinctly given by the resolution.

DIRECTOR CLAXTON: Does that include expenses for the necessary meetings? We cannot do anything until meetings are arranged.

DIRECTOR JOYNER: Perhaps the Bureau of Education will take care of that.

DIRECTOR CLAXTON: We shall hope to do so.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: The Constitution provides that the headquarters of the Secretary of the Association shall be determined and located by this body. You will recall that Secretary Shepard had the office at Winona for a good many years. The present Secretary is at Ann Arbor, Mich. It seems a question worthy of our consideration as to the permanent location of the Secretary in what may be regarded as the most suitable place. This meeting, as I understand it, has full authority to determine such place, if they so desire. There are a good many elements which enter into this, and the Chair takes the liberty of suggesting, if it meets your approval, that you delegate your authority in this matter to the Trustees or to the Executive Committee or to those two committees jointly, or, if you desire, you can refuse to take up the question at all for the present.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: May I make a motion that the headquarters remain for the coming year where they are and that the Executive Committee be requested to recommend a desirable permanent location?

DIRECTOR ALEY: I should like to call your attention to one thing. In order to get quarters necessary for the proper carrying-on of the business at a reasonable rate, it is necessary that a contract be entered into for more than one year. In view of the fact that the money of the Association is not as abundant as it might be, it seems to me that question is worthy of consideration. I should like to amend the motion as made by substituting "three years" for "one year," which is the period of the contract with the present Secretary.

DIRECTOR PEASE: I will accept the amendment.

Motion carried.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: The next subject is the question of the location of next year's meeting, and we are now ready to receive any invitations that may be presented.

SECRETARY SPRINGER: I do not wish to read the communications containing invitations for next year's meeting, but I shall state the places from which they come: New York City, Asbury Park, Atlantic City, Baltimore, St. Paul, and St. Louis.

DIRECTOR W. A. BRANDENBURG, of Oklahoma: I move that the invitation speeches be not to exceed five minutes in length.

Motion seconded and carried.

MR. MILTON C. POTTER, of Minnesota: (Read invitation from St. Paul.)

DIRECTOR AGNES E. DOHERTY, of Minnesota: I wish to speak in behalf of St. Paul. We have in Minnesota a very large organization of teachers—something like six thousand now, and there is among them a great deal of professional interest. We feel that we should have the next meeting of the Association.

DIRECTOR ANDREW J. PIETSCH, of Maryland: (Read invitation from Baltimore.)

DIRECTOR GROSZMANN: (Read invitation from Atlantic City.)

DIRECTOR W. N. SHEATS, of Florida: (Spoke in behalf of Baltimore or Atlantic City.)

DIRECTOR JOYNER: (Spoke for St. Paul, seconding the invitation.)

DIRECTOR TEITRICK: (Spoke for the East.)

DIRECTOR GRACE DEGRAFF, of Oregon: (Spoke on behalf of the grade teachers of St. Paul.)

DIRECTOR JOYNER: As I understand it, the only guaranty of active membership is made by St. Paul. I want to hear from Mr. Potter as to that guaranty.

MR. POTTER: The guaranty is on file for seven thousand. I reiterate all guaranties made in 1911.

DIRECTOR DOHERTY: I intended to speak of a certain proposition later, but perhaps now is a suitable time. We have a big organization in which there is much professional spirit, and we want to try this plan. We wish to interest certain school people to take out institutional memberships. We started this classroom-teacher movement, and we now have something like three thousand members in various parts of the country. We feel that we could interest these teachers to take out membership for their schools. The membership would represent the rank and file of the profession and would be no burden on anyone. We are interested in the National Education Association and we are anxious to share the burdens of the Association.

MR. POTTER: In my endeavor to be brief, I have overlooked a promise made to Dr. Vincent to put before this body his suggestion that he would be glad to co-operate with the President of the Association in making his summer school, which is one of the big summer schools of the country, carry the themes of the National Education Association, and he believes that the University of Minnesota can act in conjunction with the National Education Association to the great advantage of both.

DIRECTOR GROSZMANN: (Spoke for New Jersey on behalf of Atlantic City.)

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: We shall proceed with an informal ballot.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I have a motion that I wish to make, as follows:

Resolved, That the Executive Committee be instructed to discontinue the separate publications of the Proceedings of the Department of Superintendence; all proceedings of the separate departments to be issued together in the regular volume. Also to discontinue the duplication of material which has in the past appeared both in the volume of Proceedings and in the Yearbook.

Motion seconded.

DIRECTOR EVANS: Does that apply to the reports of committees? Will such reports appear in the volume?

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: Yes, unless otherwise provided for.

Motion carried.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I have another motion, as follows:

Resolved, That the Executive Committee be and hereby is authorized and requested to seek from the Congress of the United States legislation which will make it possible for all publications of the National Education Association to be sent thru the mails free of cost.

Motion seconded and carried.

DIRECTOR GROSZMANN: May I ask whether it would be wise to consider at this time a matter regarding the finances? We learned that the finances of the National Education Association are not sufficient, and that even an increase in membership would not give the needed funds. Is this not the proper time to make the following suggestion? Cannot the by-laws be so amended that the membership fee of regular members be increased to three dollars a year, and so that the associate members, who wish to get the Proceedings, be charged an extra dollar for the same?

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: I should like to say that that matter will come up presently. The vote of the directors with regard to meeting-place was reported as follows:

Baltimore, 2; Atlantic City, 11; St. Paul, 27.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I move that this vote of preference be referred to the Executive Committee with power to act.

Motion carried.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: The Chair wishes to call attention to the most important matter that is to come before us.

DIRECTOR PEARSE: I have one formal motion that must be made. Representing the Executive Committee, I have a motion to make on the question of appropriations. I make it substantially as it was amended before the annual meeting.

Resolved, That the Executive Committee be and hereby is empowered to authorize and approve bills for the several committees of investigation, etc., as follows:

Committee on Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living (and so much in addition thereto as may be necessary to enable the committee to complete and present its report, not to exceed $2,500 in all).....	$ 575.00
Committee on Articulation of High School and College.....	1,350.00
Committee on Rural Schools.....	1,000.00
Committee on Uniform Nomenclature in English Grammar.....	1,400.00
Committee on College Entrance Requirements.....	40.00
Committee on Vocational Guidance and Vocational Training.....	2,000.00
Committee on Health Problems in Education.....	1,500.00
Committee on Tests and Standards of Efficiency in Schools and School Systems (Committee of six authorized at San Francisco meeting, 1911).....	1,000.00

Resolved, That the Executive Committee is authorized to apportion the funds indicated above except in the case of the committee first named; also to assume such responsibility as may be requisite in determining which expenditures are most important and which shall be first authorized, if it shall in any case prove to be impracticable for all expenditures authorized to be made as requested; and that the committees of investigation named above be required to consult with the Executive Committee and secure the approval thereof before contracting obligations or making expenditures.

With reference to the matter of the Executive Committee's being authorized by the active members in their annual business meeting to exercise some discretion in regard to the order in which appropriations shall be drawn upon, I would say that it is impossible to tell which committees will need their money first, or which will need it in the same percentage. Unless there is some leeway allowed to the Executive Committee, the committees and the Executive Committee might be embarrassed in handling funds to the best advantage. I hope the response in the way of new membership will be such that all of these committees will have all the money they need. In case this is not so, it will be necessary to use discretion so as to secure the greatest usefulness. I move that this body ratify the action of the active members.

Motion seconded and carried.

DIRECTOR GREENWOOD: I have a motion to make as follows:

Moved, That the Executive Committee be hereby authorized and empowered to make such arrangements with the Commissioner of Education for the publication of special reports as may be mutually satisfactory to both contracting parties.

Motion seconded and carried.

DIRECTOR CLARENCE D. KINGSLEY, of Massachusetts: I move that the name of the Committee on the Articulation of High School and College be changed to the Commission on the Reorganization of Secondary Education, in accordance with a vote passed by the Secondary Department.

Motion carried.

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: I should like to present the absolute necessity of certain activities that will bring more money to the Association. The Executive Committee and Board of Trustees have it in mind to undertake a campaign thru the directors to increase our membership. I simply want to make this personal appeal that, when the matter is presented, you will exercise your best efforts to carry out the attempt that will be made to increase our income.

DIRECTOR ALEY: I should like the privilege of three or four minutes to emphasize, from a somewhat different angle, what Chairman Fairchild has said. It seems to me he has touched upon the most important question before the National Education Association at the present time. Judging from what has occurred in the past, unless there is a very great activity in this Directorate and thruout the country, there cannot possibly be more money coming to the Association, reckoning on the basis of what has occurred in the past, than about $30,000 for next year. You have heard that it took about $48,000 to pay the expenses of the past year, and not one penny of that was spent foolishly. You can see that what has been indicated to you with regard to our condition is an actual fact. I think we ought to go back to our respective states imbued with the determination to do personal work in behalf of the Association. We do not want the activities of the National Education Association, these investigations of important committees, to stop, and we do not want the publication of the Proceedings or reports to be crippled. They cost money, lots of money. It seems to me that it is important that the membership of the Association be doubled within the next six or eight months.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: It occurs to me that if we stop to reflect we shall realize that thru the state associations there might be raised a sentiment favorable to the national body. I would, therefore, suggest that the Secretary of this Association organize a campaign that will work thru the state departments and associations of the several states.

Notice was given to the effect that Atlanta, Ga., had extended an invitation for the meeting of the National Education Association in 1916. R. O. Stoops, who had been elected as director for Illinois, resigned, with the recommendation that W. H. Campbell, of Chicago, be elected in his place.

DIRECTOR: I move that Mr. Campbell be elected to take the place of R. O. Stoops.
Motion carried.

DIRECTOR GROSZMANN: Is it in order to make a motion to the effect that the consideration of the question of a change in the by-laws to raise the membership fee be referred to the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees?

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: We cannot present matters with regard to by-laws except the annual meeting of active members.

DIRECTOR SCRIBNER: Is there a plan to extend an invitation to all boards of education to become active members of the National Education Association?

CHAIRMAN FAIRCHILD: Yes.

Notice was then read of a call for a meeting of the Trustees immediately following the meeting of the directors.

The meeting then adjourned.

MINUTES OF THE MEETINGS OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION IN CONNECTION WITH THE FIFTY-FIRST ANNUAL CONVENTION IN SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

PHILADELPHIA, PA., February 26, 1913

Pursuant to a regular call made by James M. Greenwood, chairman of the Board of Trustees, Trustees Aley and Brown met at Secretary Springer's desk in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel at twelve o'clock, noon. Trustees Fairchild, Greenwood, and Joyner were absent. There not being a quorum present, they adjourned to meet at 12:30 P.M., in Room 109 of the same hotel.

There were present at this meeting Trustees Fairchild, Brown, and Aley. Trustees Greenwood and Joyner were absent. In the absence of Chairman Greenwood, Trustee Fairchild acted as chairman.

Upon proper motion made by Trustee Brown, Secretary Springer was authorized to issue in bulletin form announcements concerning the Salt Lake City meeting in order, if possible, to make the publications of the Secretary come under second-class postal rates.

The committee consisting of Trustees Fairchild and Aley asked further time in which to make a report concerning a permanent home for the Secretary of the National Education Association.

Trustee Fairchild reported that the recent investment in Kansas bonds was satisfactory, and that the failure to pay interest when due was occasioned by a change in the office of treasurer of the state of Kansas and not by a lack of funds.

The Board of Trustees adjourned to meet with the Executive Committee in Room 1457, Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Thursday, February 27, at 9:30 A.M.

ROBERT J. ALEY, Secretary

E. T. FAIRCHILD, Acting Chairman

PHILADELPHIA, PA., February 27, 1913

Pursuant to adjournment of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the National Education Association on February 27, the board met in joint session with the Executive Committee in Room 1457, Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, and came to order at 9:40 A.M. with E. T. Fairchild in the chair. Trustees Aley, Brown, and Fairchild present; Trustees Greenwood and Joyner absent.

The Million Dollar Fund campaign of Mr. Bicknell was discussed at length. As this matter was decided upon by a vote of the Directors of the National Education Association, the Board of Trustees and the Executive Committee are merely the authorized agents of the Board of Directors in carrying out details and pushing forward the work. It was the wish of both bodies that proper publicity of this fact be given.

It was voted that Secretary Springer be requested to furnish each director and trustee a copy of the vote of the Directors on the Million Dollar Fund and also a copy of the contract made with Mr. Bicknell.

The Trustees by unanimous vote authorized Chairman Greenwood to return to Secretary Springer $6,125.00 for the general fund, the same having been transferred to the Permanent Fund by an order of Chairman Greenwood, under date of November 25, 1912. The money was already in the Permanent Fund and was to be reinvested. This authorization is to make possible the correction of the books of the Secretary.

At 11:30 A.M., the meeting adjourned.

ROBERT J. ALEY, Secretary

E. T. FAIRCHILD, Acting Chairman

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, July 5, 1913

The Board of Trustees of the National Education Association met in Room 509, Hotel Utah, at 8:15 P.M. Present: Trustees Greenwood, Fairchild, Brown, Joyner, and Aley.

THE SECRETARY'S OFFICE

Since the establishment of an office for the Secretary it has been the custom, under the direction of the Trustees and Board of Directors, for the Secretary to assume full charge of the collection of the annual dues and all other receipts at the annual convention, turning over the same to the Treasurer during the convention and accounting to the Treasurer directly for all money so collected. It has been the invariable custom for the Treasurer to check up all convention receipts, during the convention, from the original stubs of membership certificates issued, and to audit the same and receipt to the Secretary for all convention revenues, which revenues are, therefore, not included in the record of receipts at the Secretary's office as covered by this report.

During the remainder of the year the Secretary has been charged by the Board of Trustees and the Board of Directors with the collection of annual dues of active members not attending the annual conventions; of enrollment fees and dues of new members enrolled at other times than during the annual convention; of receipts from the sale of back volumes, reports, committee reports, and from all other sources. The revenue from these sources is reported by the Secretary to the Treasurer monthly, and all accounts of both Secretary and Treasurer are examined and audited by an audit company at the close of each fiscal year.
